THE CRISIS IN OUR NHS

Beds are full, patients have nowhere to go after discharge and staff are leaving

George Welch and Eva Astreinidou Reporters

THE cancellation of all non-urgent operations for two days at the John Radcliffe Hospital and the current state of health services in Oxfordshire will put health workers off seeking employment in the county, according to an Oxford GP

All non-urgent elective procedures and surgeries at Oxford's John Radcliffe Hospital (JR) were cancelled on Friday and Monday as its chief nurse admitted "significant pressures" and "increased demands" on its emergency services

The JR re-opened its doors to non-emergency services on Tuesday

But Dr Helen Salisbury, GP and a National Health Action candidate in the 2016 Witney by-election, spoke of the 'national crisis' in hospitals

She said: "Our beds are full and more specifically people cannot be discharged because there is nowhere else to go or they require nursing and need support at home to get better

"There are many things making health care difficult at the moment.

"Nationally there are gaps in staffing rotas and this means harder work for those that remain. It's not surprising that staff are finding jobs abroad or retiring early"

More than four in 10 hospitals in England have declared a major alert as they encounter unprecedented pressures

The JR is currently at the second highest level of warning. Escalation Level 3 which means there are "major pressures compromising patient flow" and "further urgent actions are now required"

> "This indicates the state of the NHS as a whole and shows that it is working at maximum capacity"
> Executive director of Healthwatch Oxfordshire, Rosalind Pearce

Other hospitals nationwide have been put on black alert – the highest level of warning at Escalation Level 4 – due to overcrowding.

The Oxfordshire University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust (OUH) announced the cancellations on Friday morning

OUH chief nurse Catherine Stoddart said, "Given the significant pres-

NHS in crisis: 'Big consultation' launches

Samantha McGregor Reporter

NORTH Oxfordshire residents are being urged to log journey times into the city's hospitals as a campaign moves up a gear

MP Victoria Prentis launched the initiative in a bid to highlight how long it takes from towns and villages across North Oxfordshire to get to Oxford based hospitals

Patients attending appointments at the city's hospitals are being encouraged to record their travel time as part of the ongoing protest against plans to downgrade services at Banbury's Horton General Hospital.

Mrs Prentis said. "Following the downgrade of the Horton maternity unit, I remain extremely concerned about travel times to the John Radcliffe

"The journey can be so unpredictable and parking times must be taken into account. "These variables need to be considered ahead of the consultation on NHS services in Oxfordshire

"It would be brilliant if as many people as possible get involved in the campaign to give us a good indication of true journey times from Banbury."

Mrs Prentis will collate the information to present to Oxfordshire Clinical Commissioning Group

The campaign has also got the backing of Cherwell District Council

Cllr Barry Wood, leader of Cherwell District Council, said. "This is not about politics, this is about working together to protect essential health services for the people of Banbury and the surrounding areas

"If proposals to downgrade hospital services in Banbury do go ahead, people will have no option but to travel to Oxford and an increase in journey times could very well lead to an increase in complications

"Cherwell may not have the power to make decisions about the future of the Horton General Hospital but we do have the power to join together with the community to make our voices heard."

The online survey asks people to record the name of the hospital they were visiting, the day of the week they travelled and the time of their appointment.

Patients should specify if they used public transport or a private car the start and end time of their journey from home to reception and how long it took to park their car or travel on

Closure decision to improve patient flow

sures our Emergency Department is currently experiencing, we have taken the decision to cancel all non-urgent elective admissions at the John Radcliffe Hospital for Friday and Monday

"We have taken this decision to improve the flow of patients through the hospital so we can ensure that we can continue to see patients in our Emergency Department in a timely way"

All patients impacted by the decision were notified and all urgent admissions and day cases went ahead as planned.

Ms Stoddart added. "We are continuing to work hard with colleagues in social care and our own supported discharge services to discharge patients who no longer need our care in order that patients who do need to be admitted can be seen within the appropriate timescales.

"Staff across our hospitals, in both of our Emergency Departments and in our medical and surgical wards are working extremely hard and doing an excellent job providing good quality care in spite of the pressures."

Independent watchdog Healthwatch Oxfordshire said the Trust's move was a "wise decision" but also a signifier of just how bad health provision in Oxfordshire had become and that it will only get worse

Executive director Rosalind Pearce told The Oxford Paper "This indicates the state of the NHS as a whole and shows that it is working at maximum capacity

"As the weather gets worse, more people become ill or injured and that places pressure on A&E

"Cancellations have a profound effect not just on the patient who may be in pain or having to take time off, but also their family and extended support network.

"But the JR has clearly reached the point where they have no choice but to take this decision driven by demand, because if the need for beds that A&E is putting on the rest of the hospital.

"It is probably a wise decision and not one they will have taken lightly"

Astute a health and safety consultancy has called the period between Christmas Day (2016) to New Year's Day (2017) the NHS's "nightmare week", with 457,084 calls made to its 111 phoneline – making it the busiest week since records began in 2010.

Ms Stoddart said "In light of the increased demand for our emergency services we would like to remind people across Oxfordshire to consider all the options available to them before deciding to go to an Emergency Department."

Submit questions and help shape health services

THE Oxfordshire Clinical Commission Group (OCCG) is inviting local residents to submit questions and attend a board meeting on Thursday next week.

The meeting will be held at Jubilee House on Oxford Business Park between 9am and 12 45pm.

Chief executive David Smith will update the public on the progress the OCCG is making to improve patient care further, and a report on its finances.

Mr Smith said. "The board meeting is an opportunity for members of the public to hear about the progress we're making to commission high quality health services in Oxfordshire

"We encourage members of the public to attend the meeting and help shape health services"

The agenda items will be available on the OCCG website from a week prior to the meeting

Meetings such as this one are held about once every two months.

The OCCG kicked off public discussions to do with the transformations in June to October 2016.

The consultations began on Monday

Questions for the board meeting on Thursday can be submitted at least 48 hours before the meeting to oxon.gpc@nhs.net

the Pack and Ride system.

Sean Woodcock, Labour group leader, said, "This is all about showing the Trust how wrong they are with some of their evidence.

"Anyone who has ever been to the JR from Banbury knows that it can be a long journey because of the traffic.

"The Trust then advise in their own letters to patients that you should leave an hour for parking.

"The more people who show how long it takes in reality to get into the JR from Banbury, the weaker the case of the Trust to downgrade services at the Horton."

The survey is available to complete at https://www.surveymonkey.co.uk/r/HQ55BQB or people can search the hashtag #Banbury2JR on social media.

Invitation to Board meeting

OXFORDSHIRE residents are being urged to attend a board meeting of the county's official health and social care watchdog to find out more about proposed changes in healthcare.

Some of the county's most senior health officials will talk about changes across Oxfordshire's NHS at Healthwatch Oxfordshire's board meeting on Tuesday.

Rosalind Pearce, executive director of Healthwatch Oxfordshire, said: "Health and care services in Oxfordshire are going to undergo huge changes, as providers get to grips with meeting rising demand, changing health needs and less money to spend.

"This will be a valuable opportunity to hear directly from Oxfordshire's top decision-makers, and we urge people to come along, listen to the presentation and have their say."

Dr Joe McManners, chairman of the Oxfordshire Clinical Commissioning Group, and David Smith, the organisation's chief executive, will give a presentation on Health Transformation – the process which will set out how the county's changing health needs may be met over the next few years – before the board meeting.

The meeting will take place at Benson Parish Hall, Sunnyside, Benson, near Wallingford, with the Health Transformation presentation taking place from 4pm to 5pm and the Healthwatch Board meeting starting at 5.15pm.

The full agenda and papers can be viewed at tinyurl.com/h463hhn.

County raises idea of single merged authority to share services in bid to save £100m

Eva Astreinidou, Reporter

OXFORDSHIRE county council (OCC) yesterday raised the idea of merging services and functions between the six councils in order to receive more powers from the Government and simultaneously work towards a saving target of £100m.

In bringing together the six councils under one umbrella, in what is known as the One Oxfordshire proposal, the OCC is able to combine services.

The changing structure will mean a reduction in the number of councillors and senior management posts, leading to £4.7m in savings with the senior management posts being at the higher scale.

The OCC has proposed a reduction to 100-125 councillors from the current 282 councillor posts across the six councils.

The savings aim to remove duplication of services by consolidating six councils and combining district and central services. This means that places such as libraries, leisure centres, fire stations and health facilities would have more joined up services.

The combining of services could also generate more savings through transformation.

Grant Thornton, an independent accounting and consultancy firm, found that the single authority would be the most cost-effective, and has estimated a further £20m annual saving.

At the moment, the county faces an estimated £1.7 billion gap in funding for its £6 billion infrastructure needs, including roads and rail. Grant Thornton reported that a £1bn infrastructure fund could be made possible by the enhanced stability of a larger and financially sustainable council.

By merging all their savings as well as their property portfolios, a potential £1bn infrastructure fund could address much of this gap.

The county council is accountable for the majority of expenditure on council services in Oxfordshire, with the total spend on services amounting to £737m in 2016/17.

The district and city councils total is £84m.

In December, West Oxfordshire District Council (WODC) said these changes would unlock more funding streams from central Government that would allow greater investment in major infrastructure projects across the county.

It said the devolution proposals were considered as taking priority over plans to create a unitary authority.

WODC leader James Mills said, "Residents are not interested in what they perceive as local councils squabbling among themselves. What is important is delivering infrastructure and I believe devolution can do that."

Have your say on proposal to shake-up the county's NHS

George Welch, Reporter

OXFORDSHIRE'S NHS could undergo a major shake-up after plans for a transformation of the county's medical services were released this week.

Proposals include closing around 200 acute hospital beds, centralising stroke and critical care and a shake-up of services at the Horton General Hospital, including moving its Special Care Baby Unit to Oxford.

The NHS in Oxfordshire has launched a consultation asking residents what they think about the possible changes to the county's healthcare services amid sweeping cuts across the organisation.

The Big Consultation is lasting for three months, consisting of 12 sessions in almost two months across the county, with the first to take place in Banbury on January 26.

Proposals were announced by the Oxfordshire Healthcare Transformation Programme (OHTP) on Monday, and Phase 1 of the consultation, which focuses on acute hospital services, will run until April 9.

The proposals follow "The Big Conversation" last summer when the public, volunteers and charities had informal conversations with NHS clinicians and staff to share ideas on how health services in the county should be run.

Feedback from all the groups has been considered and the proposals for change have been developed using this feedback, together with the opinions and expertise of clinicians and senior NHS leaders the OHTP said.

Phase 1 proposals impact acute hospital services, such as surgery, medical care, emergency care and tests, and are based on the policy of moving care away from medical centres and into the home.

Health chiefs are attempting to tackle a forecasted £200m funding gap by 2020.

The consultation documents outline changes to the following services:

- The way hospital beds are used and increasing care closer to home
- Planned care services at the Horton General Hospital
- Acute stroke services
- Critical care
- Maternity services

According to Dr Joe McManners, clinical chairman at the OCCG, these changes are being considered now because the quality of care for patients will be affected if decisions are delayed.

He also added that some of these services do not meet national clinical best practice recommendations.

David Smith, chief executive of the OCCG, has urged residents to feed back on the proposals.

He said, "We want to hear from people who use services in Oxfordshire – patients, carers, residents, young and old, and people who work in our health services."

Consultations will be held on:

Thursday January 26, 7pm-9pm in Banbury

Thursday February 2, 2pm-4pm in Chipping Norton

Tuesday February 7, 3pm-5pm in Wantage

Thursday February 9, 7pm-9pm in Oxford

Longer wait for superfast broadband connections

PROPERTIES in west Oxfordshire without superfast broadband will have to wait a little longer for faster internet speeds after a project to increase connectivity fell through.

Cotswolds Broadband received backing to deliver increased internet speeds across west Oxfordshire in 2015 but recently announced, "Due to circumstances beyond our control we have had to make the difficult decision to withdraw from the project."

Nevertheless, West Oxfordshire District Council (WODC) has said it will take "the lead role" in delivering superfast broadband to the remaining 10 per cent of properties in the district that are currently without access.

According to the district council, Cotswolds Broadband and its supplier ITS Technology Group withdrew from the rollout following net work build issues.

WODC and Government agency Broadband Delivery UK (BDUK) are now looking to pick up Cotswolds Broadband s job and have confirmed that public sector funding remains available to make this happen.

WODC said their new project will start immediately and will begin with a formal Open Market Review (OMR)

This will be followed by a public consultation to determine which premises need connections before confirming a new supplier

It is estimated that this process could take in the region of six months with the build starting three months after that, the council said

OXFORD United have warned the club might have to find a new home after voicing their dismay at the slow progress of talks over the ownership of the Kassam Stadium.

The club responded on Monday to a statement published by Oxvox, the U's supporters trust, on Saturday saying they would be "disappointed" if they failed to reach an agreement with Firoz Kassam the stadium owner, before the end of the season.

Oxvox, Mr Kassam and Oxford City Council have been negotiating since October last year to make the stadium community owned.

But Oxvox's statement has provoked an immediate and strongly worded response from the club's directors, saying an agreement should be made long before the end of the season.

"There is no reason why an outline of the deal cannot be signed in weeks even days and not months as suggested," the club said.

The directors added that ambitions of building long-term, sustainable success for the club would be "extremely difficult under the current circumstances"

> "As the tenant, we are clearly a very interested party, and without any direct involvement, we continue to be left in the dark as to how the final deal may impact the club and indeed when such a deal is likely to be finalised"
> Oxford United Board of Directors

This includes "retrenching the club's ambitions" narrowing horizons a review of the playing budget and support of the academy and "even looking at playing elsewhere until we find a new permanent home"

Overall implications of the stadium ownership "will have a major impact on our ability to plan for the future", the club admitted.

The United statement was written by board of directors Steve Dolton, Darryl Eales David Jones Simon Kelner Peter Lee Lionel Tarassenko and Greig Box Turnbull.

They said "While we continue to support the efforts being made to find a solution, we call on Oxvox, Firoz Kassam and the Oxford City Council to accelerate the process for the good of the club, the fans, and to safeguard the future of OUFC."

The statement continued on to say the directors find it "strange that we are not included" in discussions over the stadium, which currently excludes Oxford United.

They added "As the tenant, we are clearly a very interested party, and without any direct involvement, we continue to be left in the dark as to how the final deal may impact the club and indeed when such a deal is likely to be finalised.

"We remain happy to join the negotiations at any stage."

Oxvox said it had begun "constructive and positive discussions" with Mr Kassam about buying the 12,500 seat stadium in October last year

Mr Kassam bought the club in 1999 for £1 and sold it in 2006 for £2m, but retained ownership of the stadium.

Pilot dies in plane crash at nature reserve

THE pilot of a light aircraft who died in a plane crash at Aston Rowant on Sunday was a man in his 60s

The aircraft left Turweston Aerodrome in north Buckinghamshire but crashed at the Nature Reserve at 2.35pm

Police have said the man was from Milton Keynes.

A spokeswoman for Thames Valley Police said "Officers arrived at the scene along with the ambulance and fire service. Sadly, the pilot of the aircraft, a man aged in his sixties, was pronounced dead at the scene."

The man's next of kin have been informed and a post-mortem examination is expected to take place over the next few days

The Air Accidents Investigation Branch sent a team to investigate the crash site

Police locked down the Aston Rowant Nature Reserve after the aircraft accident with a flow of police vehicles coming in and out of the site

It is not known yet whether fog or poor visibility had a part to play in the fatal air crash at the nature reserve, which straddles the M40 near Stokenchurch

The natnre reserve is around 160 hectares of designated Outstanding Natural Beauty and sits in the Chiltern Hills

Man charged after woman raped at knifepoint in park

Georga Walch*r Reporter*

A 44 YEAR-OLD man from Eastbourne has been charged after a woman was raped by a knife wielding, balaclava-wearing man at a park near Oxford Brookes University

Mark Pearton, of Cavendish Place in Eastbourne, Sussex, was arrested and charged on Friday

He has been charged with one count of rape, one count of assault by penetration and one count of possession of a knife in a public place.

Pearton appeared at Oxford Magistrates' Court on Saturday and has been remanded to appear at Oxford Crown Court on February 10

Thames Valley Police (TVP) launched a fresh appeal for information on Thursday last week, following the attack on Tuesday January 10

Police did arrest a 36-year-old man but he was released on the evening of Wednesday January 11

Detectives from Oxfordshire Force CID are continuing to investigate the circumstances and anyone with any information about the incident should contact police

Senior investigating officer Det Insp Jim Holmes re-appealed for information on Thursday saying: "Our first appeal is to anyone who saw or heard anything unusual in the vicinity of Raleigh Park and Harcourt Hill on Tuesday between about 7.30pm and 8.30pm.

"Perhaps you saw a man acting suspiciously or a man talking to a woman, if you did then please come forward.

"The second part of our appeal is to anyone who saw any vehicles being driven erratically along the northbound carriageway of the A34 particularly near Botley or Wytham after about 8.30pm on Tuesday

"Or perhaps you saw items being thrown from a vehicle on the A34 during that evening. If you did then we also want to hear from you."

TVP said it has increased its presence in the area, including a scenewatch and foot patrols by police officers and have carried out house-to-house enquiries

The woman continues to be supported by specially trained officers.

Det Insp Holmes added: "We are in the early stages of a complex investigation but I can reassure the public that we are working tirelessly to bring the offender to justice."

£50m Orchard Centre expansion plans:

Phase two of shopping centre set to start at last

Eva Astremidou: Reporter

THE £50 million expansion of Didcot's Orchard Centre is a step nearer with work due to start in Station Road on Monday

The pedestrianised part of Station Road will be transformed into a bus route as part of the expansion project.

Buses currently drive along High Street which is shut to general traffic, but they will be moved to run along Station Road to Broadway with High Street to be built upon as part of the development.

The bus route was approved by Oxfordshire County Council on February 23 last year

The timeframe for the project shows a significant delay from initial planning dates, as a schedule of works for expanding the Orchard Centre, published in May showed it was supposed to have started on August 1 and due to end in June this year

Representatives at G L Hearn, the consultancy working alongside the developers Hammerson, have said this was not the case.

The development will feature 24 extra shops, six restaurants, a Marks & Spencer's food hall, a gym and 105 parking spaces.

The expansion will occupy land previously occupied by warehouses that were demolished around High Street, ending close to Next clothes store in the existing Orchard Centre

Andrew Berger North, Director of UK Retail Parks at Hammerson, said, "Beginning works on Station Road is an important first step in the development process

"The extension of the successful Orchard Centre will play an important part in the future growth of Didcot and the wider Science Vale area.

"We are looking forward to getting started on site details of which we will update on accordingly"

Matthew Evans, a representative for G L Hearn, said developing the new bus route on Station Road has had to start before the rest of the works can be carried out. Letters were sent out to businesses and residents on the road to inform them of the start of works

The works on Station Road will be running for 14 weeks, he said.

Councillor John Cotton, Leader of South Oxfordshire District Council, said "We are very pleased to be working in partnership with Hammerson on the expansion of the Orchard Centre.

"We have worked hard, as land owner and council to make this development happen for the residents and visitors of Didcot, including providing the necessary land."

Mayor of Didcot Steve Connel said, "Didcot is rapidly evolving into one of the most important locations in all of Oxfordshire and our residents genuinely deserve a world class retail experience that

OXFORDSHIRE MPs have been celebrating National Pothole Day by welcoming investment dedicated to fixing damaged roads

The Department for Transport (DfT) announced a £70m fund to fix potholes across the country in November and revealed Oxfordshire would benefit from £1,315 000 – enough to fix almost 25 000 potholes.

Oxfordshire's allocation of £1.3m is only beaten in the South East by Surrey (£1.35m) Hampshire (£2.1m) and Kent (£2.2m)

With National Pothole Day on Monday, John Howell, MP for Henley, welcomed the investment.

He said on Friday: "The state of our roads is consistently raised with me by local residents across the constituency and remains a great source of frustration for drivers

"This funding is welcome news for families and businesses in Oxfordshire who rely on our roads to get around."

On Friday the Government formally announced the cash as part of a £1.2 billion fund for local roads allocated to councils to repair and rebuild transport links

The Conservatives said the funding would improve roads, cut congestion and improve journey times

"So if signing up the kind of shops Didcot deserves means I have to be being somewhat patient, then I am willing to bite my tongue.

"But what I am not willing to stay silent about is the new bus route forced upon Didcot residents as part of this development. We repeatedly voted for it to be refused and it's a mistake which I hope will be rectified sooner than later."

Hammerson was not available to comment.

Woman killed after hit by car

WANTAGE: A 34-year-old woman has died after she was hit by a car in Wantage.

The Wantage woman was confirmed dead at the scene after being hit by the vehicle on the A417 Reading Road at the Ardington and Lockinge crossroads.

Police confirmed she was hit by a Peugeot 207 on Monday at around 9.25pm.

The driver of the Peugeot and other drivers stopped at the scene to assist.

Her next of kin have been informed.

No one has been arrested.

Investigating officer Sgt Jack Hawkins of the Joint Operations Unit for Roads Policing, said: "Our thoughts are with the family of the woman who tragically died following this collision."

Drugs charges

FARINGDON: A man has been charged with supplying class A drugs heroin and cocaine in Faringdon.

On Friday Mark Calhas, of no fixed abode, was charged with one count of supplying heroin and one count of supplying cocaine between March and April last year.

He has been bailed to appear at Oxford Magistrates' Court on February 28.

Fire inquiry

OXFORD: An investigation into how a blazing fire in Oxford was started last week has been launched.

A smoke alarm alerted occupiers of a home in Freelands Road to the fire at around 3.15pm on January 11.

Three fire engines from Slade Fire Station and Rewley Road Fire Station in Oxford were quickly on the scene.

Firefighters were faced with flames and smoke bellowing out of the property from the first floor and roof areas.

Further investigations by the Fire and Rescue Service's Fire Investigators are ongoing.

She is described as 5ft 7ins tall, medium build, ginger hair, worn in a bun but shaved at the back. She has a scar on her left hand, and was seen wearing a reversible blue Adidas jacket with white stripes.

Investigating Officer DI Jonathan Capps said: "We are asking anyone who has information about Lauren's whereabouts to come forward, or if anyone has spotted someone matching her description we would ask them to get in touch.

"We would also say that if Lauren sees this appeal herself then please call us - you are not in any trouble we just want to know that you are safe."

Call 101 quoting reference 1080 12/01/17.

Bands wanted

ABINGDON: Local bands have the chance to perform to 3,500 people at this year's Music in the Park.

The event will take place in the Abbey grounds on June 3.

The Chairman of the Summer Events Sub-Committee and Leader of Abingdon Town Council, Cllr Mike Badcock, said they have already received a number of applications.

Any bands that are interested in playing can contact the council with a short resume.

Investment Fund, announced in the 2016 Autumn Statement and the Pothole Action Fund.

It also includes £75 million which councils can bid for to repair and maintain local infrastructure such as bridges, street lighting and rural roads.

MP for Witney, Robert Courts, raised similar issues to Mr Howell.

He said the concerns of his residents over the quality of roads was "why I made better roads part of my Five Point Plan in the by-election [last October]."

Last year the Local Government Association urged immediate investment, claiming otherwise the pothole repair backlog on English roads would take 14 years to complete.

Following the recent distribution of funds, a total number of 24,600 potholes across the county will be fixed or stopped from forming.

In response to being told the figure in November, the Labour candidate in Witney's October by-election said: "Is that all – [that] doesn't sound like enough."

He added: "Any extra addition is welcome. As a result of my (and others) efforts and campaigning, there has been an improvement.

"It is important that people keep reporting pot holes and remind councillors to do their duty."

According to a report in last year's autumn statement, it costs £53 on average to fill a pothole.

Iffley Open House campaigners outside Oxford Crown Court on Friday

Eva Astremidou: Reporter

IFFLEY Open House campaigners lined the pavement outside Oxford Crown Court to fight the eviction of homeless people from its premises.

Since New Year's Eve, 14 squatters have moved into the abandoned building, formerly a garage, and have been using the cooking and washing facilities.

Legal proceedings to repossess the premises were due to start on Friday. The case was adjourned pending the results of a health and safety inspection and further negotiations.

Iffley Open House are campaigning online and have petitioned Oxford University's Wadham College, which owns the building, to keep using the building for shelter.

The building was due to be renovated and converted into student accommodation.

Midcounties Co-operative Investments Ltd, who own the ground floor of the property, started legal proceedings to recover possession and evict the squatters.

Kevin Brown, group general manager for specialist services at the Midcounties Co-operative, said: "We're now in positive negotiations with the legal representatives of Iffley Open House to allow the group to remain in the property until our lease expires in April.

"In April we have a legal obligation to hand the site back, with vacant possession, to our landlord Wadham College."

Chris Jarvis, a campaigner for the group, tweeted on Friday: "Over 30 people outside oxford crown court in the snow this morning to support @IffleyOpenHouse against eviction. Amazing community support!"

Tom Moorhouse tweeted: "Huge congrats and thanks to @IffleyOpenHouse for everything they are doing. And shame on @midcounties coop —guys, you need to sort it out!"

Wadham College released a statement on Thursday last week that said they are "profoundly sympathetic to the plight of homeless people in and around Oxford".

They added: "The College has been raising money to support a variety of local homeless groups for many years.

"However, as a charity and part of the University of Oxford our obligation is to our students.

"We are obliged to ensure that the College's assets can be used to their fullest extent and, in relation to the Iffley Road property, to construct new student accommodation, which will be particularly important for students of more modest means."

They said the College will be contributing more than £900 000 towards affordable housing in the Oxford area.

Subject to planning consents, demolition of the building is due to start in March.

They concluded: "We have met with representatives of the Iffley Open House and are working to reach a consensus."

There are also fears that the building, which was a former VW garage, is unsafe due to asbestos, fire alarm systems that are not functioning, and fire extinguishers not being present in crucial areas.

In a letter to Iffley Open House, Wadham College said, "We must warn you of serious safety issues for anyone visiting or remaining within this old and dilapidated building which is not considered safe for residential use."

Councillor Mike Rowley, an OCC board member for Housing, said: "The first concern is for the security of everyone in there."

He added: "That said I am glad they are not sleeping on the streets. I hope the owners will work cooperatively to make sure people are not rough sleeping."

Firms get the nod for awards

OXON An office supplier in Witney and two Oxford-based firms have been nominated for the Thames Valley Family Business of the Year Award 2017.

Witney's Aston and James and Oxford's electrical engineers W Lucy & Co Ltd and Colourful Coffins have been shortlisted for the award organised by Family Business United (FBU).

Run by FBU the awards celebrate the UK family business sector and has competitions for nine different regions.

Oxfordshire's three representatives will be up against two other businesses in their category from Beaconsfield and High Wycombe.

The results will be determined through a combination of a judging panel and an online vote.

Ex- Mayor dies

THAME Thame Town Council have said former councillor and mayor Mike Le Mesurier has died, aged 89.

Mr Le Mesurier was the Mayor of Thame between 1998 and 2000 and was a driving force behind the implementation of the Swimming Pool.

He was also a former teacher at Lord Williams's School between 1978 and 1991.

Mr Le Mesurier died on January 9, 2017.

Drop in funding forces family centre to cut lifeline services

A FAMILY support centre has announced it is facing a reduction of 57 per cent in its service from January 30 due to lack of funding.

Donnington Doorstep centre has been unable to find replacement funding for the drop-in service following the withdrawal of Oxfordshire County Council's financial support in March 2016.

The management team explored many funding options and were able to secure sufficient funding to maintain their specialist services.

However they could not secure enough to ensure the open access drop-in stays open for its full service hours.

In August last year the team decided to close their Saturday sessions followed by their week day afternoon sessions in October.

The team sent the drop-in service will be available only on Wednesdays from 10am to 1pm.

They said, "We are devastated by this loss.

"We know that our weekday drop-in service and café are a key way that people get to know us as an organisation, and we are bitterly disappointed at this reduction."

They added, "We are privileged to have a wonderful and diverse team, who have been working with determination and dedication amidst uncertainty."

Christine Simes, chair of Donnington Doorstep trustees, said, "It is heart-breaking to have to announce that we can no longer provide our daily drop-in.

"The drop in is the heart of Doorstep for more than three decades we have offered a friendly welcome, fantastic play opportunities, and support to local families.

"We are now facing the greatest crisis we have ever confronted, I would appeal to all parents, grandparents and carers who have come to Doorstep and loved it to get behind us in our campaign to 'Save Doorstep Drop-In'. The alternative is too devastating to contemplate."

Councillor Lawrie Stratford, cabinet member for finance at OCC, said, "Unfortunately the centre did not meet the criteria for further funding. The transition fund was set up for centres that we own. It is public money so we need to ensure that it meets the needs of the whole county. We can't bypass these rules."

The services that will continue include the family support work, youth work, the specialist Child Sexual Exploitation service, and their Pre-school, thanks to funders and individual donors.

The team held a Crisis meeting yesterday evening and they will be lobbying Oxfordshire County Council to approve their second application to the Transition fund on January 24 at Oxford Council Hall.

Many centres are facing threat of closure across Oxfordshire as the county council has cut funding to more than half of its children's centres.

A High Court challenge to the plans was discussed in August.

Second woman attacked while walking a dog

CARTERTON. A second female dog walker has been attacked in the space of a month in Carterton

The latest attack took place on Monday January 9 at about 8.10am on a footpath alongside the White Bridge between Brome Way and Northwood Cresent.

A 48-year old woman was walking her dog when a man approached her shouted "phone" and grabbed her

She dropped her dog's lead and the dog bit the thief on his left arm before the woman and her dog ran away to safety towards Lilac Way

The suspect, who police have released an e-fit of fled in the opposite direction towards Monahan Way and did not get away with any of the victim s property

Police described the man as white, aged about 25, 5ft 10ins tall with a medium build and fair/blonde spiky hair

He was wearing a plain black jacket with a zip at the front dark jeans and black gloves.

Police added that he had a strong Eastern European accent

It is the second such attack in Carterton in the past month and police believe the incidents are linked.

Investigating officer PC Shelley Slater, of Witney Local Area CID, said. "In both incidents lone women were walking their dogs in unlit areas.

'Understandably both victims have been left very shaken from the incident."

College apology after reject letter sent out in error

OXFORD- An Oxford University college has apologised after sending rejected potential undergraduates details of all their fellow unsuccessful applicants

Hertford College sent out rejection emails including copies of letters with personal details including the names, addresses and subjects of all the failed candidates.

The college s Principal, the writer broadcaster and political economist Will Hutton, said the college was quickly told and asked recipients to delete the original email.

Mr Hutton told The Oxford Paper "Owing to an administrative error an email sent to just over 200 Hertford applicants included an attachment containing information about other applicants

"On being informed of this within minutes of the error we immediately contacted the recipients to apologise for the error and to ask them to delete the original email.

"We would like to apologise to all applicants affected by this mistake for any distress caused.

"We are now undertaking a wholesale review to make sure this type of error involving personal information never happens again."

Images of how the revitalised Templars Square could look – members of the public are invited to have their say on the plans on Friday and Saturday

Cowley's £60m regeneration plan on display

THE £60m plans to "revitalise the heart of Cowley" at Templars Square will he oo show this month for the public to view

The owner of the site, NewRiver, will be presenting its final plans for its development at two public information drop in sessions this month.

The sessions will he held before the application to Oxford City Council is determined later this year.

The drop-ins will provide the community with the opportunity to view the proposals and put forward questions to the development team.

The new development at the shopping centre will boast a hotel, new restaurant units a streetscape and pedestrian routes, car parking, as well as 200 one- two- and three-bedroom apartments including affordable housing.

In response to previous consultations about the development, Councillor Dave Henwood expressed concern about the social housing plans.

He also spoke about the impact it could have on ArkT a charity endorsing the arts through creative workshops and music classes

He said. "The developer will need to justify why they are not meeting the 50 per cent threshold for social housing This viability study will need to he submitted to city council officers to scrutiny"

He added. "Generally the plans for the regeneration of the city centre have been well received. The Cowley regeneration includes a wide range of housing which should be welcomed

"Residents have however raised concerns on parking and the impact of demolishing the car park next to the church and the impact on classes run at ArkT who run specialist classes for vulnerable children and adults."

The current Templars Square

Cllr Henwood arranged a meeting for ArkT residents to attend on Monday

Allan Lockhart, property director of NewRiver, said ' We re delighted to have submitted planning and to now present our exciting proposals again to the local community to show how we ve incorporated previous feedback.

"This is a once-in a generation opportunity to revitalise the heart of Cowley and these drop-in sessions demonstrate our long term investment in the town and our continuing commitment to work in partnership with the local community"

About 57 jobs would be created, NewRiver said, as well as 300 construction jobs

The two drop-in sessions will be held in Bank Court within Templars Square Shopping Centre on Friday from noon to 5pm, and Saturday from 10am to 4pm.

Three-storey flats plan for arson-hit Jack Russell pub

Eva Astreinidou: Reporter

A DERELICT Marston pub that was the target of an arson attack will be transformed into a three-storey block of flats, whilst many are campaigning for another pub to replace it.

The Jack Russell Pub, on Salford Road, Oxford, was set ablaze on November 12

Police are treating the incident as arson, but no suspects have been identified.

The site owners have submitted an application to demolish the former pub and create 16 flats, with a provision for 19 car parking spaces.

Previous plans for the development led to a backlash from residents and councillors

Councillor Mick Haines of Oxford City Council said he is against the proposal, and has been campaigning in the local area to garner residents' support for the site to be turned back into a pub.

He said. "We would like to see it standing as a pub again as soon as possible I didn't find anyone who opposed this

"If the housing development went ahead, it would mean taking away a valuable asset of the community"

He added. "The three-story building they are proposing does not fit in with the area and the amount of parking spaces is horrendous. Part of the worry is also the flooding and sewage situation because more flats will put a strain on the system."

With the Old Marston Parish council on his side he said he is hopeful the application could be halted and the proposal for a new pub accepted.

In the meantime many residents have reacted positively to the housing development plans

Dave Grant, who lives on Salford Road, said. "This development will bring much-needed social housing to Marston and boost businesses in Salford Road, Cherwell Drive Marston Road - they seem to all be closing one by one

"Can someone show me the down side?

In a meeting earlier in January, Emrys Harris, a nearby resident, said. "I have had the advantage of the pub for many years Although I would love to see a thriving pub again that won t happen.

"At the moment it is an eye sore and would be much better spent for homes "

The pub has stood derelict since it was sold by brewery Greene King in October 2015

The Oxford Paper charity launch 2017, plus review of 2016 charity Blue Skye Thinking

Thanks for all your fundraising for our Blue Skye Appeal

George Welch' Reporter

LAST year our sister paper The Oxfordshire Guardian s Charity of the Year was Blue Skye Thinking and we launched a campaign with them—The Aim Skye High appeal.

Blue Skye Thinking was set up in 2014 as a legacy for five-year-old Abingdoo boy Skye Hall, who died later that year from the side effects of his aggressive cancer treatment.

Since it was set up the charity has raised a phenomenal amount of money and has funded a four year research project into childhood brain tumours

Since the tragic death of their son, parents Sally and Andrew Hall have made it their mission to raise awareness about childhood cancers and to find more funding for research

Together we asked for your help as our readers and the charity s supporters to help them fund a new researcher through the Aim Skye High appeal.

The Aim Skye High Appeal aims to raise £50 000 towards a three-year Post Doctoral research position at the renowned Northern Institute for Cancer Research.

And during this campaign we reported on how the charity has inspired many people across Oxfordshire —and the country—to get out there and fundraise for a magnificent cause

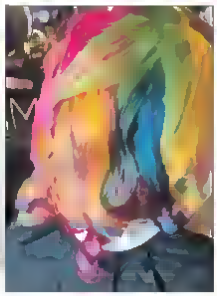
The charity motivated a whole series of events to raise money and awareness, including a firewalk at the Nag s Head pub in Abingdon a London to Paris cycle ride, a marathon run, hair-dyeing and even a momentous climb up Mount Kilimanjaro.

As The Oxford Paper and Oxfordshire Guardian announce their supported charity for 2017, we would like to congratulate Blue Skye Thinking on all their fundraising efforts so far and wish them all the best for the future

You can still support the appeal at tinyurl.com/hgpvzyn or text UPUP52 £3 to 70070 To plan your own 'Skye High event, email amskyehigh@blueskythinking.org and the charity will send a fundraising pack.

Sally Hall with her son Skye

Some of the things you did to help raise money for the Blue Skye Appeal – Maxine Deadman 38, raised £727 by sporting a 'rainbow' hair-do; Judy Tallet, 54, from Garing, joined a hundred other cyclists to ride from London to Paris and a group of intrepid climbers who scaled Kilimanjaro



Play2Give - our charity for 2017

PLAY2GIVE (P2G for short) is a Didcot Business and Community Awards award-winning Oxfordshire fundraising organisation formed in 2007 by Didcot s Andrew Baker who teamed up with a small group of friends

From what started out as a single football tournament event to the ever-growing organisation that it is of today, Play2Give has proved to be hugely successful and year on year grows and grows raising money for local charities through organising many events and fundraising initiatives.

Currently they have donated over £52 000

This year marks the charity s 10th anniversary and there are a whole variety of fundraising events planned you can get involved in.

One of their key events will be a skydive - are you brave enough to jump out of a plane from 13 000ft from Hinton Airfield?

But they are also looking for people to brave the Monster Race at Combury Park in April

Find out more about all the events they have planned at play2give.org.uk/events.html.

This year Play2Give is raising funds for Oxford Children s Hospital and Headway Oxfordshire

We'll be running regular features on Play2Give and telling you about how you can get involved with this great cause and help make its 10th anniversary even more special.

Next week we ll be telling you more about the charity and all the work it does and more on the causes it is supporting this year

Fight erupts on train after chips thrown at the victim

POLICE have released a CCTV image of a man they would like to speak to after a fight erupted on a London to Didcot train last month.

The fight broke out between 12.50am and 1am on Thursday, December 22 last year.

The victim, a 32-year-old man, boarded the 12.20am service at London Paddington before two other men boarded the train at Reading.

One of the men to board the train at Reading began to throw chips at the victim, where he then asked for him to stop.

Following this, one of the men then asked him for a fight.

A short while later the man stood up and put the victim in a headlock and punched him several times in the head.

He was also pushed which made him fall backwards into the vestibule.

British Transport Police released the CCTV image on Thursday last week.

Investigating officer PC Katherine Billingham, said: "This was a totally unprovoked and nasty assault and I am hoping the person responsible can be identified and brought before the courts.

"As you can imagine, being placed in a headlock and punched multiple times is a frightening experience. Thankfully he did not receive any long lasting injuries.

"From viewing the CCTV images, I can see that a member of the public may have filmed this incident on their phone.

"If you were this person, please do get in touch as your footage could be hugely important."

Anyone with any information is asked to contact BTP by sending a text to 61016 or by calling 0500 40 50 40 quoting reference 331 of 12/01/2017.

Theatre seeks £550,000 to replace roof

Eva Astreinidou: Reporter

KEEPING heritage alive is the key aim of a £550,000 appeal to replace a glass roof on a Grade II listed Victorian theatre.

Wallingford's Corn Exchange launched the fundraising bid on Friday to replace the 160-year-old glass roof on the building.

The event kicked off a series of fundraisers to help secure finances to restore the historic venue's roof, dating from 1856.

The roof leaks badly in poor weather and is damaging the building's infrastructure.

The Corn Exchange has been run by volunteers since it opened its doors in 1975 as a cinema and theatre.

John Warburton, who is on the board of directors, was one of its first volunteers who planned the renovation of the once derelict building, 40 years ago.

He said: "It's been a passion and it is difficult to give it up now. It changed my life."

In his appeal to the audience, he said: "We have to keep the facilities up to date and modern otherwise people won't want to come and spend their money here.

"But it is a very tight economic situation presently. Increases in regulations and more demand for grants make this a little harder.

"Money does not come to us we have to work for it."

The Smodun Players, a registered charity, own The Corn Exchange, and plough all the fundraising profits back into the running and maintenance of the building. The charity has set aside £150,000 for the project thanks to previous funds raised.

Mr Warburton said: "If you represent a local business think of how we can offer you advertising space. For individuals – think of how your help can provide a legacy for your family."

Debi Lisburne Deacon, who has been a volunteer for 27 years, said: "We have to keep going and we have to look at every possibility."

Debi, who is now a trustee, spent much of her time here directing shows herself.

She said: "It means a lot to me. I am quite passionate about theatre and I am passionate about this facility, it is such a rare facility to have.

"The fabric of the building is ours, you don't want to lose that. Can you imagine walking away from this?"

She said the trustees and board members are preparing an application for further help from grants.

John Jeskins, a digital projectionist at the cinema, said: "[The restoration] means that we can keep our heritage alive. To see it perish would be a dreadful thing."

The decision for the planning permission is expected at the end of February.

Work is expected to start in July and due to be finished in the autumn.

New taxi rules to improve safety

TAXI drivers across Cherwell will have to work to stricter standards to ensure they keep their licence.

A new licensing policy, introduced by Cherwell District Council came into effect last week.

The joint Private Hire and Hackney Carriage Licensing Policy aims to ensure people who use cabs "have a safe reliable and pleasant experience."

Among the changes is mandatory safeguarding training for drivers, stricter criminal records checks and new spoken English tests.

Driving standards is another condition of the new licence application process.

Recommendations from the Oxfordshire Safeguarding Children Board following reports into child sexual exploitation in Oxfordshire and in Rotherham have been included in the new rules.

Cllr Tony Ilott, Cherwell's lead member for public protection, said: "The aim of this new policy is to ensure the safety of residents and visitors using taxis in and around the district.

Cllr Tony Ilott halives the stricter standards will make using taxis safer for all

"Taxis and private hire vehicles regularly transport passengers who may be vulnerable including children and those under the influence of alcohol, so it is essential that our policy meets the highest standards to safeguard both passengers and drivers.

"With these enhanced checks and regulations the general public can have greater confidence in using taxi drivers that have been thoroughly trained and vetted to ensure they are fit for purpose."

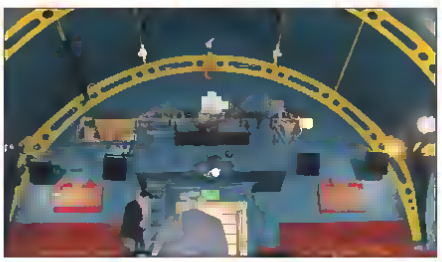
A points system will keep track of taxi drivers who flout the new rules and the council will have the power to revoke licences.

Drivers applying for a licence will face "the fit and proper person test" which vets would-be cabbies for general demeanour and honesty before they get behind the wheel.

The new policy also states applications from those convicted of the most serious offences will be refused altogether and the period of good behaviour required from applicants with spent convictions for lesser offences has been increased from three to 10 years.

The council consulted on the changes last summer and they were approved by councillors just before Christmas.

■ Drop in workshops will take place for drivers to get more information on the changes on Monday 30 January and Monday 13 February in the council chamber at Bodicote House between 10.30am and 2pm.



One of the best evening's ever – student wins prize for essay

A WANTAGE schoolgirl has been celebrating a prestigious science award for an essay and presentation on why she loves science.

Last week The Oxford Paper reported that a pupil from King Alfred's Academy claimed first prize at the 2016 STFC Science Prize Finalist Celebrations last month.

Year 9 student Amber Collins wrote a 500-word essay on 'why I love science' and delivered a two-minute presentation in front of judges, scientists, parents, teachers and school friends at Rutherford Appleton Laboratories, Harwell.

Amber and her two guests, classmates Rebecca Hooker and Melissa Quinn, attended the finalists' celebration evening and were accompanied by King Alfred's academic enrichment coordinator Pam Stokell and Amber's mum, Linda Collins.

Amber, who beat 114 other competitors to win the top prize, was praised by her school for her "passionate, articulate, witty and totally convincing" presentation.

She told The Oxford Paper it was "one of the best evening's ever".

The 14-year-old added: "I can't believe I have won this. To be honest, I have had such a wonderful evening that I would have been perfectly happy with the book token and pen."

Her prize was an iPad mini, and she has been asked to return to help judge next year's competition.

The prize giving was led by executive director of the National Laboratories Dr Andrew Taylor, who invited all 15 finalists on to the stage to be congratulated.

Dr Taylor praised Amber's entry for its "vision and persuasive passion", saying it was "witty, articulate and totally convincing".

Friends Rebecca and Melissa were delighted for Amber.

Rebecca said: "The standard of the presentations was incredibly high," while Melissa added: "I was hoping Amber would win because she was in my top five. She definitely deserved it."

As part of the celebrations, the students were treated to an evening of activities and tour of the facilities, including the giant research lasers.

Pam Stokell said: "This is exactly the sort of opportunity we want for our students – what wonderful encouragement to have Amber walk away with first prize. It was a brilliant and inspiring event."

Lest we forget – soldier shot in Iraq flown home

George Welch Reporter

HEAVY rain did not prevent dozens of people paying their respects to a British soldier killed in Iraq.

Lance Corporal Hetherington, of 2nd Battalion, The Duke of Lancaster's Regiment, died on January 2, following an incident at Camp Taji, north of Baghdad.

The 22 year-old new dad from Middleton, Greater Manchester, died in what is believed to be a tragic accident during a training exercise.

His body was flown back to Britain on an RAF C17 Globemaster plane and landed at RAF Brize Norton on the afternoon of Thursday last week.

Draped in a union flag, the coffin of the popular soldier was carried to a waiting hearse by soldier pallbearers to the sound of a military band.

Family members paid their tributes to L/Cpl Hetherington at a specially designed memorial gardeo in Carterton before the cortege travelled to the John Radcliffe Hospital in Headington where a post-mortem examinatioo took place.

The soldier, who was nicknamed 'Snowball', was a member of Blenheim Company and a vehicle commander in the Force Protection Platoon.

He leaves behind a girlfriend and baby daughter.

Lieutenant Colonel Rob Singleton, Commanding Officer 2nd Battalion, The Duke of Lancaster's Regiment, said: "Lance Corporal Scott Hetherington was a superb soldier and a first class leader.

"Utterly professional and talented, he was full of character, fun and his enthusiasm was infectious.

"The battalion has lost a huge talent and a real character. He will be missed dearly and we will never forget him.

"Our hearts go out to his parents, his siblings, his girlfriend and his young daughter. They are in all of our thoughts."

Lance Corporal Lynch, Force Protection Platoon, Blenheim Company, 2nd Battalion The Duke of Lancaster's Regiment, said: "Snowball was a top bloke. You could always count on him to have a laugh, and he always had an answer for everything.

"He was such a big character. He will be greatly missed by the whole Battalion."

The Ministry of Defence has so far refused to confirm the circumstances of the 22-year old's death.

They only stated that the tragedy on January 2 was not the 'result of enemy activity'.

Mike Penning, the Minister of State for the Armed Forces, said an investigation into the "tragic incident" is under way.

According to figures published in 2016, the UK lost 179 servicemen and women during the campaign that followed the invasion of Iraq on March 20 2003.

The British military mission came to an end in April 2009.

Camp Taji serves as a training site for the Iraqi Army, some of whom are trained to fight against the so-called Islamic State.

Soldiers and members of the public lined the route paying their respects as the cortege drove from RAF Brize Norton

Firm sets sail on new adventure

OXFORDSHIRE marine firm Williams Jet Tenders met with industry minister Jesse Norman at the London Boat Show to discuss their business and future opportunities in a growing marine industry

British Marine the organisation hosting the event, welcomed the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State at the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy at the show on January 9, where he met with businesses in the marine industry

Industry Minister Mr Norman said: "The UK maritime sector is an important industry for the UK adding over £11 billion to the UK economy and I was delighted to visit the show and see for myself the success of our marine and maritime businesses

"We will continue to work with industries to further upgrade productivity create high skilled jobs and ensure sustainable economic growth."

Mathew Hornsby sales director at Williams Jet Tenders said "The marine industry needs high profile visits to allow a greater understanding of how areas of the industry are hugely significant to the UK in terms of the skills and services they enhance"

Howard Pridding chief executive officer of British Marine said "It's been an ideal place to provide the Minister with a full familiarisation with the success of our £3.01bn UK marine industry

"We welcome the Minister's visit at a time when the Government is developing an industrial strategy which must recognize the scale and contribution of the UK's marine and maritime industries

Mr Norman's visit coincided with the release of the industry's latest statistics which show that the UK's leisure marine industry is responsible for revenues not seen since the financial crash

Revenue in the South East has grown by over £99 million in the last year with an additional 1,475 full-time roles being created in the region.

A WALLINGFORD gym and rehabilitation centre is helping people of all ages improve their quality of life through movement therapy.

The gym, based in the Howbery Business Park, was started in 2011 by Lisa Treacher and a former Olympic hockey player.

The gym helps those with sports injuries but also those affected by Multiple Sclerosis, Muscular Dystrophy, Parkinson's Disease, cancer and depression, amongst many other conditions.

Instructors tailor programmes to suit each person's individual needs, working on things like balance, flexibility, muscle control and confidence issues as well as cardio, strength and conditioning training.

The gym has expanded from just a few machines to a complete range of cardio equipment, weight training areas and treatment rooms.

Lisa, who is now the sole owner, said: "Lifestyles is first and foremost a rehabilitation centre. This is our passion.

"Whether it's due to a sporting injury, stress at work, or a serious stroke or cardiac condition, we aim to get our clients moving and give them back some quality of life.

"Everyone can benefit from movement therapy to help reduce chronic pain and the risk of injury, or to enhance their performance."

Brian Griffiths, a member of the gym, suddenly lost sensation in his legs, feet and arms from the elbows down within 36 hours, five years ago.

He spent six months in hospital where he was given the diagnosis of Guillain-Barre syndrome, a disorder in which the immune system attacks the body's nervous system.

He said: "Lisa has been absolutely wonderful, her skills as much as anything, she is inspirational and I couldn't speak more highly of her."

He recalled that after an exercise session with Lisa, he was able to feel the carpet beneath him, after months of having no sensation in his feet.

He said the disorder will always affect his mobility, but that he is almost back to normal.

"Everyone can benefit from movement therapy to help reduce chronic pain and the risk of injury"

Gym owner Lisa Treacher

Donna Bowles, estates manager for Howbery Business Park, said: "We're very proud of the inspiring work Lisa is doing here."

The gym also offers personal training and onsite therapy rooms providing physiotherapy, osteopathy, naturopathy, sports massage, acupuncture, reflexology, hypnotherapy and foot care, including custom made shoe orthotics.

Lisa Treacher helps Brian Griffiths with his movement therapy – a service which has been invaluable to him

School joins Vale Academy Trust

AN academy trust responsible for several schools in Oxfordshire has added an Abingdon school to its group of primary and secondary institutions.

Larkmead School, on Faringdon Road, converted to an academy on January 1 and is the seventh academy to be run by the Vale Academy Trust (VAT).

The VAT, which also runs King Alfred's in Wantage and Charlton Primary School, now has a shared responsibility for educating and supporting 4 000 young people and more than 600 members of staff within the local area.

All schools belonging to the trust share a focus on three key issues: improving pupils' outcomes and opportunities; supporting staff across the trust and collaboration and sharing of good practice and resources across the Trust.

The first joint project involving Larkmead School and King Alfred's Academy will be a workshop for highly able students.

Larkmead School is now part of the Vale Academy Trust

Simon Spiers, chief executive of VAT said: "This is a very exciting time for the Vale Academy Trust and, importantly for Larkmead and King Alfred's who will be sharing best practice and other opportunities over the coming months."

Chris Harris, headteacher at Larkmead, said the transition has taken "many months of careful planning."

He said: "It is an exciting moment when learning institutions join together for the mutual benefit of the students and staff.

"We see that our students and staff will have immediate benefits both within and outside of the classroom.

"This is a key moment in the history of our school and we believe that this strategic move will enable us to continue to broaden our horizons and to bring the greatest level of opportunity to our students, our staff and our community."

Larkmead School's chair of governors Ian Littlejohn, added that joint activities between schools within the VAT are already being planned.

Jo Halliday, headteacher of King Alfred's, said: "There is so much we can learn from each other and this opens up enormous opportunities to our staff, students and local communities."

Larkmead will continue to work with the other schools in Abingdon to further current links.

Zip wire opening delayed by vandals and turf taking time to settle

THE weather and vandals have delayed the opening of new zip wires in three Bicester parks.

Work started last autumn on a £100 000 project to refurbish children's parks in Shakespeare Drive, Lucerne Avenue, in Bure Park, and Holm Square in Southwold.

Most of the work has been completed, but turf on mounds built for the zip wires has yet to take and until it does, the new facilities can't be opened.

Among the work that took place at the park in Holm Square, Southwold, was the installation of new play frames, poles and boards, while the play area in Bowmont Square, off Shakespeare Drive, has got a large pyramid style climbing net and new grass mounds and matting.

Bure Park's Lucerne Avenue park has been extended, a zip wire and large pyramid style climbing net will be added as well as new grass mounds and matting. The current equipment has been painted and repaired.

New astroturfing of the mounds in Garth Park has been installed after wear and tear problems with natural grass.

The work, funded by Bicester Town Council, has cost more than £105,000.

A grant from Tesco for £2,276, from 5p plastic bag charge introduced by shop, has been put towards the project.

Garth Park was the first of the town's parks to get a makeover.

A £200 000 cafe was built on the footings of the former eco town show-house, which was based in the park for several years, while a further £150 000 was spent on new modern play facilities.

Learn Tudor chapel's secrets

OXFORD: The Vyne is organising fundraising events for vital conservation works on its roof.

As part of the fundraising efforts, Oxford University scholar Dr Lucy Kaufman will be running lectures on the Tudor history of the building in March and June.

Dr Kaufman's research has helped to re-present the Tudor chapel as it would have been when Henry VIII visited in 1535 with Anne Boleyn.

The first of Dr Kaufman's lectures will be Friday March 10 from 2pm to 3.30pm. Tickets are £35.

Warning for dog owners

BICESTER: Cherwell District Council is warning dog owners to keep dogs on leads and not to let their animals eat from the floor.

It comes after the council's dog warden was contacted by a member of the public who raised concerns that rat poison pellets had been left on the path of a park on Langford Village.

The council said it was investigating the incident.

Contractor's name change

OXFORD: Oxford City Council's contractor on the £26 million tower blocks refurbishment project has changed its name from Wilmott Dixon Energy Services to Fortem.

Fortem has worked on the refurbishment project for the past year and employed apprentices, labourers, work experience candidates and 14 site staff.

Mick Williamson, Fortem's managing director, said: "Rebranding to Fortem will create a fresh, modern identity that better positions the company to grow its specialist services in existing and new markets."

Car enthusiasts scramble to see best of vintage car display at ex-RAF base

Eva Astreinidou Reporter

THOUSANDS of vintage motoring enthusiasts descended on the historic motoring site at Bicester Heritage for the Sunday Scramble

More than 2,500 members of the public and vintage motoring fans visited the community for the first open day of 2017 on January 8

More than 1,800 cars lined up across the 348-acre former RAF base in Oxfordshire

Motorcycles and aeroplanes were also showcased.

The historic cars featured included plenty of vintage 4 5 litre Bentleys. Vauxhall 30-98s and a beautiful Aston Martin Ulster with masses of race history while the likes of three Ferrari F12 TDFs, two of McLaren's 675LT supercars and Aston Martin's latest Vanquish S were also on show

Visitors also got a chance to see some of the buildings of RAF Bicester before Bicester Heritage rolls out its fourth phase of restoration.

The site is due to expand by an extra 30,000 square feet of workshop office and engineering space.

Plans for a hotel and motoring lodges are also in the pipeline.

The Bicester Heritage had been placed on Historic England's 'at risk' register before the Ministry of Defence purchased the site in April 2013

Now after some 100 years of being off limits to the public, the base hosts more than 30 specialist businesses that cover every requirement for storing, running and maintaining a historic car

The skilled craftspeople on the site range from historic grand prix car preparers and magneto specialists, to dealers and exhaust manufacturers

Bicester Heritage events also include the Flywheel Festival, which takes place in the summer

Have you got what it takes to be on-call firefighter?

Oxfordshire Fire and Rescue Service needs new recruits

Samantha McGregor Reporter

OXFORDSHIRE fire service is looking to recruit 40 new retained firefighters to cover the county s stations

People are being urged to sign up as on-call firefighters to respond to emergencies in their areas.

All of Oxfordshire s fire stations have on-call teams that make up 60 per cent of the county's operational fire and rescue service.

In total, 13 out of 24 stations are now crewed solely by an on call firefighters

Oxfordshire Fire and Rescue Service said it wants to attract 40 new male or female retained firefighters by the end of the year

Paul Bremble group manager for people and organisational support said, "We have fantastic crews of on call firefighters spread across Oxfordshire but as a number of them are moving on we re looking for more people to join the teams that are protecting their local community

"There is no typical firefighter and we employ men and women from all walks of life

"We ask for a minimum commitment of 40 hours on-call per week which sounds a lot but on average you are called out 2-3 times per week for an hour at a time.

"The hours are different to suit the needs of the station and individual circumstances, so the role can be flexible for individual needs."

On-call firefighters generally have other jobs and will be alerted to an emergency incident and have five minutes to get to their local fire station.

The role is paid– on call firefighters earn between £5 000 and £9 000 and receive the same training as regular firemen.

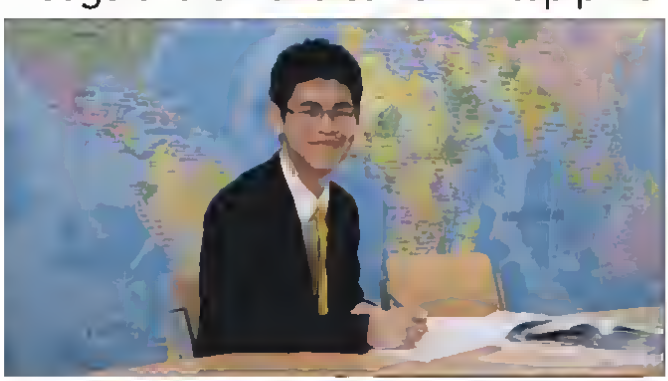
Potential recruits must have a reasonable level of fitness

Amy Palmer an on call firefighter at Wheatley Fire Station said, "I became an on-call firefighter as I wanted to give back to my community and it s a fantastic way to stay active and challenge yourself.

"It is a big commitment as you have to stay within five minutes of the station whenever you're on call but you get to choose your hours and as team spirit is a huge part of the fire service, people will always try to cover you if you need the time off."

The next training course starts in June For more information people can drop in at their local fire station or view oxfordshire.gov.uk/oncallfirefighters

Student's knowledge of the world earns him top prize



A SCHOOL pupil in Abingdon has been awarded one of this year s Royal Geographical Society s Excellence Awards for the highest geography exam marks

Ivan Leung, a student at Abingdon School has received the award from the RGS for achieving the highest mark nationally in the 2016 geography IGCSE examinations

He was contending with students from schools across England Northern Ireland and Wales

Ian Fishpool, head of geography at the school said "We are delighted for Ivan all his hard work has been well rewarded."

Steve Brace the Society s Head of Education and Outdoor Learning at RGS said "We are delighted to recognise Ivan Leung's hard work and success in his geography IGCSE. It s also a credit to the quality of the teaching in his geography department at Abingdon School."

Speaking of the importance of geography as a subject Mr Brace said "It explores people places and environments, how they are connected and change

"It s a subject that asks not just the 'what and where', but also the 'how' and 'why' and in our rapidly changing world geographical understanding and skills have never been more important.

"Geography's sustained growth in popularity in schools is the result of growing recognition from both pupils and employers of the broad skillset it provides and the subject s engagement with some of the most pressing issues in the world today."

The winning students each received a cash prize and a certificate from the Society

Home secretary's speech reported

AN Oxford physics professor has denounced a speech by home secretary Amber Rudd, calling it a hate incident.

A speech about foreign workers by the home secretary at the Conservative party conference in October alarmed professor Joshua Silver who then complained to the police.

His complaint was dealt with by West Midlands police as the conference took place in Birmingham.

The police have confirmed the speech has been recorded as a hate incident.

In her speech, Rudd said she wanted to make it harder for British companies to employ migrants and to ensure foreign workers "were not taking jobs British workers could do"

She also suggested companies reveal how many foreign staff they employ

National police reporting rules introduced in 2014 and endorsed by Ms Rudd herself require all complaints of hate crime incidents to be recorded "regardless of whether or not those making the complaint are the victim and irrespective of whether or not there is any evidence to identify the hate crime incident"

West Midlands police have now written to the professor saying they have concluded an assessment of his complaint and will not be investigating the speech as a hate crime.

"The matter has been recorded in line with the National Police Chiefs' Council manual as a non-crime hate incident," the force told the professor

Pupils to exhibit their art at Christ Church during week of prayer

George Walch: Reporter

PUPILS at an Oxford-based Catholic school have had a creative start to the new year by participating in an art project ahead of Unity Week, a Christian week of prayer.

Year 5 pupils at Rye St Antony School on Pullens Lane have had their paintbrushes out to bring artistic talent and religion together after being invited to get arty by Christ Church Cathedral.

The youngsters' contribution from the day and boarding school will include a six-panel installation to be displayed at the cathedral between January 18 and 25, the week of prayer.

Inspired by Oxford-based artist Nicholas Mynheer, work has been well under way for the youngsters under the direction of the school's head of art and design.

The project has invited young people from across the city to take part in an art programme that depicts the need to care for creation and Rye St Antony's contribution will follow the theme of shelter.

The school said the project is "a way of acknowledging that much division and disunity in the world arises from consumption, greed and wastefulness in contemporary society."

The panels will provide a focal point for the Service of Unity on the evening of January 22 at Christ Church.

Commenting on the school's contribution to the project, Rye St Antony's head of art and design Jenny White said: "Each of these panels will seek to draw connections between the story of creation in Genesis and the contemporary challenge to overcome hostility and division by caring for the planet.

"The children's idea to develop a background of harmonious colours was an inspirational starting point [for the theme of Shelter], and they also discussed shelter in the form of trees.

"Our Year 5 pupils have thrown themselves into this project and we are absolutely thrilled to be involved."

As part of the project, the tallest member of the class laid down on the canvas and her classmates drew around her and her outstretched arms to form the foundation of the painting.

Classmates then added their own arching arms and curved hands until it gradually turned into a tree shape which became shelter for a pair of doves.

St Andrew's Primary School in Headington, St Margaret's Church Art Group and St Barnabus Primary School are among the other groups taking on a panel each.

Digging deep to help

THE North Oxford Property Services (NOPS) staff left their desk jobs for the day to kick off a special tree planting scheme run by environmental charity the Sylva Foundation.

A team of five people from the Jericho-based property firm travelled to the Future Forest project in Long Wittenham where they planted 25 native Hornbeam trees.

The Future Forest is based at a three-hectare plot being developed by the Sylva Foundation.

NOPS is the first to sponsor the scheme.

The firm's director Debbie Swailes said: "It was fantastic to play a small part in this fantastic project. Not only did we feel better for the fresh air, we know we can watch our plot develop over the next few years and look forward to visiting it again soon."

Alistair Yeomans, chief operating officer at the Sylva Foundation, said: "The NOPS team really enjoyed themselves and we hope many more businesses sign up to sponsor their own plot."

The Sylva Future Forest features 300 plots of 25 trees each, all of which are available for individuals or businesses to sponsor.

Palace 10k run hoping to strike gold in UK Running Awards

THE British Heart Foundation (BHF) is calling on runners to help the charity strike gold at the UK Running Awards by voting for the charity's Blenheim Palace 10km as the best 10km run in the UK.

One of the largest events organised by the heart research charity, the BHF's Blenheim Palace 10km is in the frame after getting through the first round of voting to make it into the top 12 finalists.

And now, the charity is appealing to Oxfordshire residents for a big push for votes that will help them claim the top 10km running event in the UK.

The Blenheim Palace half marathon, 10km and 2km fun run which has taken place in early October for the past seven years has helped the charity raise funds for it's fight against heart and circulatory disease.

Around 4,000 runners took part in 2016 to raise more than £200 000 for the BHF's life saving research, which aims to improve the lives of those affected by heart disease.

Runners set off for the Blenheim Palace run

Money raised goes towards funding over 1,000 research projects across the UK, to find new ways to diagnose, prevent and treat heart disease.

The route gives runners a chance to conquer the grounds of the Blenheim Palace Estate, a route that is packed full of stunning scenery and jaw-dropping views.

BHF Event Manager Leanne Postlethwaite said: "We're incredibly proud to be shortlisted for a UK Running Award. It's such an amazing event to be a part of."

You can vote for the Blenheim Palace 10km at this year's UK Running Awards at therunningawards.com. Voting closes on March 20.

Jackie

The journalist (Billy Crudup) a fictional character based on Theodore H White arrives at Hyannis Port to interview Jackie (Natalie Portman) for Life magazine. Flashbacks and candid 'off-the-record' moments follow offering a piercing glimpse into the surreal world of public and private grief in the White House

Portman plays Jackie with extraordinary boldness, mimicking Mrs Kennedy s unusual mode of speech and 'on-camera grace without descending into parody, while communicating inner steel and turmoil behind closed doors Extremely intelligent direction refuses to simplify her character and motives leaving the audience mesmerised and mystified by one of history s most influential, enigmatic women

Cinematographer Stephane Fontene and Director Larrain are in perfect sync with a camera that draws uncomfortably close to its subject, tracking Jackie as she ghosts through frequently deserted presidential function rooms A sense of unrelenting visibility and pressure is created, amplifying the claustrophobic nature of the story while making brief moments of open-air daylight seem unusually serene

Supporting performances are strong including Peter Sarsgaard's brooding Bobby Kennedy and John Hurt's sympathetic pr est and well served by a restrained script from Noah Oppenheim that blends seamlessly with actual dialogue from historical sources There is no obvious melodrama or story-crafting present with factual events driving the film's momentum

A special note must also go to Mica Levi s extraordinary - and BAFTA nominated - score which marks a stunning deviation from traditional biopic formats emphasising the abstract horror of Jackie s situation and bolstering the production's unusual viewpoint

Jackie does not offer documentary-style facts but a stirring emotional storm - at times distressing and harsh at others beautiful and dreamlike. It will not suit everyone's taste but there is no doubt that it is remarkable filmmaking Awards nominations have already begun rolling in - an Oscar or two would be no surprise.

So much more than just a farm

Animals, garden, the farm and a bit of Downton history too – find out for yourself at the volunteer day on Saturday

James Richings

THE new year is often seen as the perfect opportunity to do something different – so here s an idea for you...

Coming from someone who has done volunteering for a number of years I can honestly say it is one of the best things you could ever do as the experience one can gain is incredible.

Spending time with people who need it whilst learning new skills is an opportunity too good to turn down.

You also create friendships that can last a life time and take part in activ ties you never knew existed.

And who knows, after years of dedi cation and hard work, there could even be a job at the end of it.

So if you want to get involved in volunteering but don't know where to start, why not try Cogges Manor Farm in Witney It has a Volunteer Open Day this Saturday

Situated on Church Lane the farm is seeking enthusiastic people both young and old to help out in a number of different departments ranging from the front desk to conducting tours in and around the grounds.

Volunteers are also needed to help out in the administration department and the marketing sector where help-ers will be writing blogs working on the social media pages whilst promot ing events

There are also vacancies in the ani mal, garden, events family activities and arts and crafts departments And with over 180 volunteers supporting the small staff team all year round, Operations and Volunteer Manager Laura Dean believes the volunteers who spend part of their day help ing Cogges Manor Farm in various departments are 'the life and soul of the company

"If it wasn t for our wonderful vol unteers we wouldn't be able to keep going," she said.

"They are the life and soul of Cog ges and are incredibly lucky with the support that we get from the local community

"We are looking forward to more people joining our team. It is their support and enthusiasm that helps to make Cogges such a wonderful place to visit."

Director of Cogges Colin Shone added, "People from all different backgrounds come to Cogges to not only learn new skills but they also use their experiences from previous jobs to help us and it's a great mix.

"As time goes on, Cogges grows and we get people from not just Oxfordshire but from around the world coming to see what we are about.

"And that's the thing, we're about anything. You get people who come to see us for our gardens, wedding venues, farms and so much more.

"We are here for everyone, and that's great."

As well as learning about all the different departments on Saturday, guests will be able to go on a tour around the farm where they will learn about the history of the Oxfordshire site, which was built in the 13th century.

On the tour they will see volunteers in action.

Guests will also find out about how Cogges Manor Farm was chosen as a location to shoot parts of the multi-award winning drama Downton Abbey from 2013 to the finale in 2015.

"Cogges Manor farm can not work without the volunteers. They're so important," Colin said.

"Every single person at Cogges cares about everything as we want everyone to have a great experience. "We are so lucky to have such a wonderful group of people who just love helping out, and we're hoping to gain even more wonderful people on Saturday."

Potential newcomers should arrive at the farm in between 10am to 3pm.

For more information about the open day visit www.cogges.org.uk or call 01993 772602.

Lyons interest in the pack

By James Richings

The last 12 months have been pretty decent for Zoe Lyons

The past year has seen the comedian appear on 'Live at the Apollo', work with John Bishop and win the 'Best Comic' category at the Chortle Awards, one of the UK s highest profile comedy award ceremonies.

But now Zoe is focusing on her brand new stand-up show 'Misfits', which will arrive at The Mill Arts Centre in Banbury on Saturday, January 21

Her visit to the Spiceball Park venue will be her first show for the year and she hopes she can start 2017 on a high.

"The show is very loosely themed on the idea of never having gifted in," the 45-year-old told the Guardian.

"I am interested in how humans group themselves together and I think that we have become a lot more tribal of late, particularly when it comes to politics.

"The EU referendum in this country and now the election in the States have polarised populations like never before.

"Problems occur when supporters on opposite sides of an argument refuse to engage in debate with each other."

She added, "Anybody who has seen me before will know I am quite energetic on stage.

"I like to act out my bigger routines, flesh them out with voices.

"I guess there is an element of clowning to my stand up."

After graduating from the University of York in 1992 with a degree in psychology, Zoe first entered the world of show business when she appeared on the reality TV show 'Survivor' back in 2001.

Despite finishing in 11th place out of the 14 contestants, the experience of being on TV gave Zoe the motivation to try stand up comedy

A year later she made her debut at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival with her 'Shut Up You're Mother' tour, which went down very well with critics and fans, and she has not looked back since

Regular appearances at the Fringe alongside comedy festivals in Leicester, Dartmouth, Brighton and Melbourne put Zoe on the international comedy circuit, which inevitably lead to television appearances most notably on 'Mock the Week', appearing on the programme six times in the last eight years.

And Zoe wouldn't change anything for the world.

"I did my first gig about 14 years ago at an open mic night in London and it was five minutes that really changed my life," she said.

"I decided there and then that this was what I was going to do, I was going to be a stand-up

"I don't think I have ever had what you would call a big break, I am slow burner.

"I have had a series of things that have happened over the years that have spurred my career on."

Tickets cost £15 and it starts at 8pm.

Children want sex education in schools to make them safer

Many children believe they need age appropriate relationship and sex education in school

Seven in 10 children in the South East of England think the government should ensure all children have school lessons on sex and relationships new figures reveal.

More than three quarters (74%) believe all children would be safer if they had age-appropriate classes on the subject says a new poll of 11 15 year olds for Barnardo s

The results support calls by the children's charity for the government to introduce compulsory age appropriate sex and relationships education through the Children and Social Work Bill. Barnardo s wants MPs to put pressure on the government to make the change while the Bill is debated in the Commons

More than 9 in 10 children surveyed online (97%) said it was important for them to understand the dangers of being online so they can stay safe While 95 per cent said they wanted to know the risks of sharing images of themselves with a stranger online according to the YouGov poll of nearly 1,000 youngsters.

Barnardo s South East and Anglia Regional Director Jonathan Whalley said. "The overwhelming majority of children who answered our poll believe they would be safer if they had age appropriate sex and relationships lessons in school.

"It's time to listen to children who are clearly telling us that they need help in understanding the digital dangers and the risks of sharing images of themselves with strangers

"Online grooming is a very real danger facing all children and nearly half of the girls polled said they were worried about strangers contacting them online

"Compulsory SRE lessons for all children must be introduced as soon as possible it will help prevent children being groomed and sexually exploited.

"It s time for government to make sure we give all children the knowledge that will help keep them safe. These children have spoken loud and clear and the Government must not ignore them."

Chair of the Women and Equalities Committee, Maria Miller said "These findings underline the importance of ensuring all school children have compulsory lessons on sex and relationships appropriate for their age.

"It s even more striking that children themselves are calling on the government to make sure they receive high quality SRE lessons so they can help keep themselves safe. The case for compulsory sex and relationship education has never been stronger"

Barnardo s Ambassador and former Girls Aloud singer Nicola Roberts said. "With sexting becoming such a huge problem, it s essential that children know how to protect themselves online Children have told the government they want school lessons on sex and relationships to help keep them safe. Now it's down to the government to stop letting them fend for themselves online and protect children by providing compulsory sex and relationships education."

Migraine associated with higher risk of stroke after surgery

Surgical patients with a history of migraines have a greater risk of stroke and readmission to hospital, finds a study published by The BMJ today

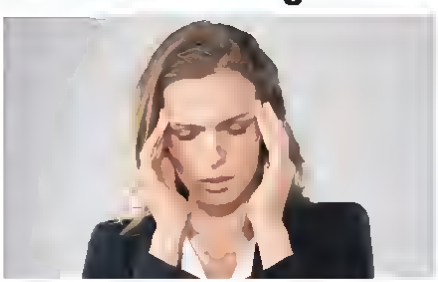
The risk was found to be highest for surgical patients who have migraines with aura, where there are warning signs before the onset of migraine such as seeing flashing lights

Experts say migraine should be included in an individual's risk assessment of stroke before undergoing surgery

More than 50 million people undergo surgery in the USA and stroke is one potential complication Stroke is responsible for around 6.2 million deaths yearly and is a leading cause of long term disability

Migraines are often viewed as a benign condition, despite the increased risk of stroke as d have not been the focus of risk assessment at around the time of surgery

So, Matthias Ehrenmann from Harvard Medical School as d colleagues investigated whether surgical patients with migraine have an increased risk of stroke and whether this may lead to a higher hospital readmission rate.



Migraines should be included in a patient's risk assessment of a stroke

They carried out a study of 124,558 surgical patients at Massachusetts General Hospital as d two affiliated community hospitals between January 2007 and August 2014.

Patients were on average 52 years old and just over half were women (54.5%)

Among the 124,558 surgical cases 771 (0.6%) strokes occurred. Of all patients with stroke 89 (11.5%) had migraine. Of these, 16 (2.3%) had migraine with aura and 71 (9.2%) had migraine without aura.

The researchers estimate that 2 4 strokes would be seen for every 1 000 surgical patients. This risk increases to 4 3 for every 1,000 patients with migraine diagnosis- 3 9 for migraine without sura, and 6.3 for migraine with aura.

The association remained after adjusting for disease and surgery factors such as age sex and pre existing vascular disease that may have increased risk of stroke

In total, 10 688 patients were readmitted to hospital within 30 days The odds for readmission was 1 31 times higher for patients with a migraine than those without.

"Given the high prevalence of migraine in the general population, the migraine-perioperative ischemic stroke association carries public health importance" they explain.

"Physicians should be aware of this increased perioperative risk, particularly in patients with migraine who present without traditional risk factors for stroke."

They speculate that a genetic predisposition and an increased vulnerability to cerebral ischemia, where there isn't enough blood flow to the brain, may lead to heightened stroke risk in surgical patients with a history of migraine.

The authors say their findings suggest that high doses of drugs used to stabilize the blood pressure during surgery known as vasopressors as well as a pre-existing cardiac shunt which allows blood to flow from the right heart to the left - may further increase the risk of stroke in patients with migraine

"Future studies should focus on targeted investigation of these interactions and potential biologic mechanisms to provide urgently needed concepts of primary and secondary, as well as perioperative stroke prevention in patients with migraine," they conclude.

Britain resolves to save more and be more healthy in 2017

Women and young people are most likely to have made resolutions for 2017

January is a notoriously good month for Britain's gyms. Floods of new members sign up with the intention of getting in shape before giving up by the end of January, often without having cancelled their membership – a previous study found that Brits were wasting £37m a year in unused gym memberships.

The reason, of course, is the New Year's resolution. With the first week in January now behind us, YouGov research has found that slightly more than one in five Brits (21%) have made vows to themselves for 2017.

Women are more likely to have made resolutions than men (24% vs 17%), whilst younger people are more likely to have made them than their elder peers, with 33% of 18-24 year olds and 23% of 25-49 year olds having made resolutions compared to just 15-16% of 50+ year olds.

However, gym owners can rest assured that their annual bonanza looks set to continue another year, with the survey finding that health resolutions are the most common. Almost half (48%) of those who made a resolution for this year said that they wanted to lose weight, whilst 31% of people said they would be improving their diet.

Women were particularly more likely to have made these resolutions than men. Four in ten people (41%) also said they would be exercising more or improving their fitness.

Another common resolution was to save money, with a third of people (32%) saying they want to do so this year. This commitment was particularly popular amongst younger people, with 48% of 18-24 year olds pledging to put more money away in 2017.

Should Auld resolutions be forgot...

With the first of 2017's 52 weeks now over, 71% of people have managed to keep to their resolutions, whilst 22% have not – although a large proportion of these people are likely to have failed to make progress so far on their resolutions (e.g. losing weight), rather than having actually broken them.

Looking back at 2016 reveals that about half of people (48%) who made a New Year's resolution at the beginning of the year were successful at keeping to it.

As with 2017, losing weight and exercising more were the most commonly made resolutions, and they were also the most commonly kept. Four in ten people (41%) who pledged to lose weight in 2016 were successful, as were 35% of those who resolved to do more exercise.

Counties work together to tackle rising diabetes levels

From April this year, people at risk of Type 2 diabetes in Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire will be offered tailored support to avoid the potentially life threatening condition.

A successful bid to be selected by NHS England as participants in the pioneering NHS Diabetes Prevention Programme was put together by the clinical commissioning groups (CCGs) and county council public health departments in Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire. As a result, people identified as being at high risk by their GP will be offered education and lifestyle coaching to reduce their risk of Type 2 diabetes.

Type 2 diabetes can cause serious health issues including blindness and kidney failure as well as complications resulting in amputation. In some cases people with the condition can develop life-threatening conditions such as heart disease. It is estimated that diabetes costs the NHS around £10 billion a year.

Dr Stuart Logan, Clinical Director for Long Term Conditions for both Buckinghamshire CCGs said: "We know that people who are helped to make lifestyle changes can dramatically reduce their risk of developing Type 2 diabetes, so we are delighted to be able to increase the diabetes prevention work we are doing and know that this will benefit more people in the local area."

Diabetes sufferers will be offered tailored support to help them

Dr Amar Latif, Clinical Lead for Long Term Conditions for Oxfordshire Clinical Commissioning Group, said: "This is a really exciting opportunity for us to tackle the ticking time bomb that is diabetes.

"Prevention is the best approach and I believe patients will embrace the scheme knowing they're taking a positive step towards a healthier future."

Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire is one of 13 areas across the country selected to take part in a further roll-out of what is the world's first nationwide programme to stop people developing Type 2 diabetes.

The programme will support 100,000 people a year across the whole country by 2020 through tailored, personalised help to reduce their risk, including education on healthy eating and lifestyle, help to lose weight and bespoke physical exercise programmes, all of which have been proven to reduce the risk of developing the disease.

Going to the pub can be good for your wellbeing – it's official

By Alex Iszatt

New research shows that moderate alcohol consumption may be linked to improved wellbeing, thanks to the improved social interaction associated with having a drink with friends at a local pub.

While most studies warn of the health risks of alcohol consumption, researchers at the University of Oxford have looked at whether having a drink may play a role in improving social cohesion, given its long association with human social activities.

Combining data from three separate studies - a questionnaire-based study of pub clientele observing conversational behaviour in pubs, and a national survey by the Campaign for Real Ale (CAMRA) – the researchers looked at whether the frequency of alcohol consumption or the type of venue affected people's social experiences and wellbeing.

They found that people who have a 'local' that they visit regularly tend to feel more socially engaged and contented, and are more likely to trust other members of their community. They also observed that those without a local pub had significantly smaller social networks and felt less engaged with, and trusting of, their local communities.

The study also showed that those who drank at local pubs tended to socialise in smaller groups, which encouraged whole-group conversation, while those drinking in city-centre bars tended to be in much larger groups and participated much less in group conversation.

Professor Robin Dunbar of the University of Oxford's Experimental Psychology department, said: "This study showed that frequenting a local pub can directly affect peoples' social network size and how engaged they are with their local community, which in turn can affect how satisfied they feel in life.

"Our social networks provide us with the single most important buffer against mental and physical illness. While pubs traditionally have a role as a place for community socialising, alcohol's role appears to be in triggering the endorphin system, which promotes social bonding. Like other complex bonding systems such as dancing, singing and storytelling, it has often been adopted by large social communities as a ritual associated with bonding."

Colin Valentine CAMRA's National Chairman said: "Personal wellbeing and happiness have a massive impact not only on individual lives but on communities as a whole. It will be of no surprise to CAMRA members that pubs play such a pivotal role in a person's wellbeing, but it is fantastic news to hear that this wisdom has now been confirmed by research.

"Pubs play a unique role in offering a social environment to enjoy a drink with friends in a responsible, supervised community setting. For this reason, we all need to do what we can to ensure that everyone has a 'local' near to where they live or work – the first step to which is to strengthen planning protection for pubs to stem the 21 pubs closing across this country each week."

Men, are you obsessed with the way you look?

New research shows that men spend one and a half years of their lives worrying about how they look.

Commissioned by hair restoration company, KSL Hair, the research of 2,000 men also found half aren't confident about their appearance and 48 per cent are losing or have lost their hair.

Simon Lindsay, CEO of KSL Hair, said: "Perhaps it's easy to forget that men worry about their appearance and these anxieties can really affect their confidence.

"The research highlights just some of the worries men have when it comes to how they look and shows that men spend a considerable amount of time thinking about their appearance.

"With men feeling under pressure to look their best, it's important we find solutions that not only help men look better on the outside but feel better on the inside."

Men typically spend a total of two days each year worrying about their weight and will fret about their hair line for around 20 hours over the same period.

On average respondents started to bald aged 35 and of those that haven't lost their hair a quarter are worried they soon will.

While respondents said they suffer from four bad hair days each month on average – and they typically worry about grey hair for a total of 12 hours per year.

Males will spend 14 minutes getting ready in a typical day and will worry about what to wear for two-and-a-half-hours each month - because they're not confident about their appearance.

Sixteen per cent of men said images of friends and celebrities on social media made them feel anxious about how they look – while four in ten avoid looking at the images altogether.

Pubs celebrate Scotland with Burns Night menu and whisky

From Monday 23rd January, food and drink lovers in Oxford are in for a treat as Nicholson's pubs including The Chequers, The Crown and The Eagle & Child kick off 2017 with Burns Night celebrations and a whisky showcase. The traditional Burns Night menu will offer guests the chance to experience classic Scottish dishes in new and exciting ways, with the whisky showcase set to enable guests to explore whisky and find new favourites for 2017.

Haggis, neeps and tatties are a traditional Burn's Night fare - with a wee dram of whisky of course

BURNS NIGHT

This January Nicholson's Pubs will be celebrating the life of the Scottish poet Robert Burns in a truly traditional fashion with a two and three course set menu showcasing classic Scottish cuisine. Guests will be able to sample the Scottish dishes from Monday until Sunday meaning Burns Night celebrations can continue all week.

Dishes will include traditional favourites such as smoked salmon served with Scottish oatcakes and chive sour cream, haggis, neeps & tatties, and to round off the meal, guests with a sweet tooth can enjoy a traditional Scottish cranachan served with honey, whisky raspberries and golden toasted oats.

Adding an extra warming winter twist on their experience, there's also a whisky flight available for guests to add to their Burns Night celebration for just £5. This includes three 25ml measures of The Balvenie Doublewood 12 Year Old, Talisker Skye and Singleton Dufftown Spey Cascade, the perfect accompaniment to the traditional Scottish fayre.

THE WHISKY SHOWCASE

The Burns Night festivities will form the start of a month-long celebration of all things whisky in Nicholson's pubs with the inaugural Whisky Showcase beginning on January 23.

More than 30 whiskies will be available in Oxford's Nicholson's Pubs until February 19 as part of the showcase and each pub will be bringing whisky to life in fun and interesting ways, and make it accessible to both the whisky newcomers and malt connoisseurs alike.

As well as an extended range of exciting whiskies, the showcase will be brought to life through events and masterclasses taking place across the Nicholson's pubs throughout the month.

These will include tasting events for beginners in conjunction with Fever Tree, whisky pairing masterclasses with Macallan chocolate and virtual reality events where guests can take a tour of the Glenfiddich distillery from the comfort of their local pub.

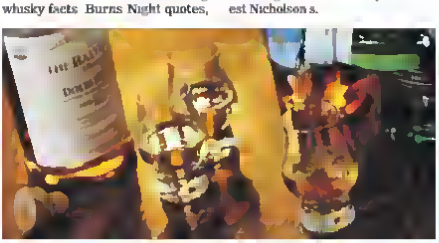
Whether guests like their whisky straight up, on the rocks or topped with cola, Nicholson's wants to show guests how accessible and unique each whisky is, and help them discover their perfect serve.

EVENTS

The Chequers will be hosting the Diageo Whisky Masterclass which will delve into the world of whisky, including the myths surrounding it, flavour mapping and exploring the Nicholson's whisky collection.

Guests can also get involved online as the Nicholson's social media feeds will be full to the rim of interesting whisky facts, Burns Night quotes, offers, competitions and much more. Follow @Nicholsonspubs and #NicholsonsWhiskyShowcase to stay updated with all things whisky!

To find out more about which Whisky Showcase events are happening in Oxford or to review the Burns Night menu, visit the website at https://www.nicholsonspubs.co.uk/burnsnightmenu and find your nearest Nicholson's.



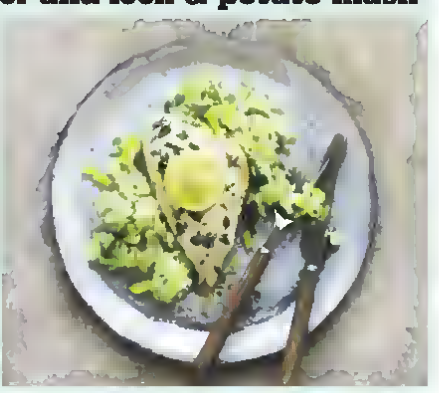
Sea bream with thyme butter and leek & potato mash

Preparation time: 10 minutes
Cooking time: 15 minutes
Total time: 25 minutes
Serves: 2

Ingredients
40g unsalted butter, plus extra for greasing
2 large white potatoes, peeled and cubed
75g frozen peas
4 sprigs fresh lemon thyme
1 small clove garlic, crushed
2 sea bream fillets
2 slices lemon
2 leeks, very thinly sliced

Method
1. Preheat the oven to 220°C, gas mark 7. Lightly butter a small ovenproof dish. Cook the potatoes in a large pan of boiling water for 10 minutes until almost tender. Add the peas to the potatoes and cook for 2-3 minutes until both are tender. Drain well, return to the pan and mash roughly.
2. Meanwhile, strip the leaves from 2 of the thyme sprigs and mash with 25g butter and the garlic. Lay the fish in the dish and dot over the herb butter. Lay a lemon slice and a sprig of thyme on each and bake for 8-10 minutes until cooked through.
3. Meanwhile, melt the remaining butter in a large frying pan and cook the leeks for 5 minutes until softened.
4. Beat the leeks into the potato and divide between 2 plates. Serve with the fish, drizzling around the buttery juices.

Cook's tip
Vary the flavourings used in the herb butter. Try swapping the thyme for chives or dill, or adding some finely chopped chilli for a fiery kick.



Peach apricot punch & Fruity gin spritzer

Just because it's January doesn't mean you can't enjoy a cocktail. Make sure the spirits and mixers are chilled for refreshing drinks – simply serve with a selection of nibbles and canapés.

Peach apricot punch

INGREDIENTS
Ice cubes
2 clementines, thinly sliced
100ml brandy
50ml orange liqueur
750ml bottle J2O Peach & Apricot Spritz

METHOD
1. Fill a large jug or a punch bowl with ice. Add the clementine slices and stir in the brandy and orange liqueur. Stir in the J2O and serve.

Fruity gin spritzer

INGREDIENTS
Ice cubes
75ml gin
1 tbsp cassis
500ml J2O Pear & Raspberry Spritz
Raspberries, to garnish

METHOD
1. Fill 2 highball glasses with ice cubes, then divide the gin and cassis among the glasses. Stir well, then top up with J2O and garnish each glass with a few raspberries.

Kale Mary

INGREDIENTS
2 celery stalks, chopped, plus some to serve
25g (1oz) kale leaves
500ml (17fl oz) tomato juice squeeze lemon juice (optional)
Tabasco, to taste

You'll worship this tasty juice, as not only does it takes no time at all to whizz up, but it's super healthy too. Tesco has reinvented the Bloody Mary and created this alcohol-free version with the addition of nutritious kale, making it healthy and delicious.

To make a juice, press the celery and kale leaves through a juicer and then mix together with the remaining ingredients.

Tip: To make a smoothie, place the celery stalks and kale leaves into a food processor. Add the tomato juice, then whiz together until smooth. Stir through the lemon juice and Tabasco to taste. Add a celery stalk to serve.

Apprenticeships
Training, qualifications and a salary

Apprenticeships are not what you think...

Did you know that an apprentice can be any age, not just a school leaver, and that opportunities go beyond just practical trades? We still train plumbers and hairdressers, but in 2016 an apprentice is more likely to be studying marketing, digital and social media, accountancy or management than brickwork or motor vehicle maintenance.

Why choose an Apprenticeship?

There are no costs for apprenticeship training for the apprentice. So that's no student loan, no debt and a fantastic qualification to help you to progress at work! We're not pretending that it won't be hard work, but with support from your employer, the College, and commitment from you, apprenticeships are a no cost solution to kick-starting that amazing career you have always dreamed of.

Red carpet dates for sound work on J K Rowling's Fabulous Beasts movie

By Alex Iszatt

Oxford based SAE is no stranger to BAFTA success indeed, it was only two years ago that past students Billy Butler and Niv Adiri took home the coveted prize for Gravity

Now audio alumnus Niv Adiri will return to the red carpet again after being nominated for Best Sound in J K Rowling's Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them.

Niv studied audio at SAE before working as a sound designer and mixer for major titles including Slumdog Millionaire The Theory of Everything, Gravity and Steve Jobs.

In 2014 he was given his first Oscar and BAFTA nod after working for three years to create sound that mimicked the open void of space This included creating an entirely new sampler program for director Alfonso Cuaron

After winning his Academy Award, Niv Adiri said: "It is an honour to hold the statue When I heard my name, I couldn't believe it I cannot describe the feeling The movie was so different and so unique that it gave us a certain edge In space there is no sound so that made my work a little different. the sound needed to add to the movie in a different way and I think we definitely achieved that.

Denis Villeneuve's lyrical sci fi title Arrival, musical Romance La La Land Mel Gibson sHacksaw Ridge and disaster story Deepwater Horizon were also nominated for Best Sound

This year s prizes will be unveiled on February 12 during a ceremony hosted by Stephen Fry The Oscars follow a fortnight later on February 26

Start-up numbers fall to lowest level for five years

Start-up numbers have fallen significantly in the last five years according to Lloyds Bank analysis The findings reveal that 19% fewer new businesses were started up in the UK in November 2016 compared to November 2011

Regionally, the data from BankSearch shows that Wales has seen the largest decline in new start-ups falling by over a quarter (26%) between a rolling 12 months from November 2011 compared to November 2016 In contrast, the business climate appears to be more positive in Scotland with a much smaller decline in new business openings of just 3% over the past five years

England has also been hit hard declining by a fifth (20%) As this is where the greatest volume of new start businesses are launched this equates to nearly 100 000 fewer new businesses created in 2016 compared to 2011

Although there has been a fall in the number of new businesses being created, Lloyds Bank has maintained its commitment to supporting British enterprise In 2016 Lloyds Banking Group (which includes Lloyds Bank) exceeded its pledge to help 100 000 start-ups get off the ground as part of its drive to support small businesses

Jo Harris Managing Director of Retail Business Banking at Lloyds Bank said. "The New Year is a time when people aim to make a fresh start. There s no bigger or braver change you can make than starting your own business The recent downward trend we've seen in new business start-ups is likely to be a response to the uncertain economic environment however there are significant opportunities if you have the determination and drive and we will be there to support you every step of the way

"At Lloyds Bank we understand that starting a new business is a serious dream for many not just an unrealistic New Year s resolution Building a business from scratch takes hard work and persistence, and it may not even succeed the first time round

"This is why we offer support from our experienced business managers who can help to develop a clear and realistic plan to get a business off the ground so they can stay up and ultimately scale up

"We are committed to supporting small businesses and are proud that Lloyds Banking Group helped more than 100 000 new start-ups in 2016."

Kitchen renovation company announces a transformation

Bicester based Granite Transformations formally announced its rebrand this January With stylish new looks to be rolled out across its showrooms and product ranges, this former kitchen renovation franchise becomes Trend Transformations as of this month

Granite Transformations started as a kitchen worktop replacement service over 20 years ago with its famous "work top that fits on top" but their range of surfaces and tiles has expanded so far that for several years they have been doing complete kitchen and bathroom renovations as well as other projects in both residential and commercial spaces

Three Trend Transformations will open in January 2017 two rebrands and one new showroom In Perth The rest of the Granite Transformations showrooms are part of a rebrand roll out programme over the next three years with at least four new showrooms sites planned across the UK each year

Derek Delaney runs the Bol lon showroom and s the first to take on the new look. He said "The new showroom is a space where our customers can realise their dreams of home improvements Whether our visitors are families architects or designers everyone will enjoy time in our lifestyle design studio "

How about an extra £432 to start the year off with?

More than 1 3 million couples across the UK have boosted their finances with Marriage Allowance HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has announced today

Around 4 2 million married and civil partner couples are eligible for the free tax break worth up to £220 per year, and since the start of the new tax year in April couples can backdate their allowance and boost their payment by up to £432 – so why not start 2017 with a bit of a financial boost?

Applying for Marriage Allowance is quick and easy with the online form, and with customers being able to apply at any stage in the tax year and still receive the full entitlement, there really is nothing to lose

Jane Ellison. Financial Secretary to the Treasury, said "For the more than four million eligible married and civil partner couples the Marriage Allowance could be a welcome financial boost

"What better time than the new year to claim?"

Ruth Owen. Director General Personal Tax. HMRC said "An extra £432 is a really helpful way to start 2017 especially after Christmas

"If you want to get your finances in order this year it only takes a few minutes to check if you can get the Marriage Allowance tax break "

School pupils learn about Oxbridge life with trip to Varsity rugby match

By Alex Iszatt

The Varsity rugby matches between Oxford and Cambridge – one of the oldest rivalries in sport – were the venue for an outreach event targeting local school students.

Five-hundred teenagers representing 30 state schools visited Twickenham, the home of England Rugby for an event dedicated to encouraging more bright state school students to consider applying to the two universities

The event was targeted particularly at schools in London with little previous engagement with Oxford and Cambridge

As part of the free day out at the annual rugby matches pupils met Oxford and Cambridge admissions staff and students and found out what it's really like to study at Oxbridge They also received information and advice about the application process to both universities.

Thomas Carding a teacher of History, Politics and Law at Haringey Sixth Form College said "Our students had the opportunity to speak to Professor Louise Richardson, the Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University, about topics including good interview technique and the need for more women to take part in STEM subjects They also enjoyed the chance to meet students of subjects they're thinking of applying for This experience has certainly increased their interest and confidence in applying to Oxford or Cambridge."

Dr Samina Khan, Director of Undergraduate Admissions and Outreach at Oxford University said: "Having the excitement of the Varsity matches as a backdrop is a great way to engage with local schools – particularly those with little previous engagement with Oxford. While we reach thousands of students in schools across the country each year with our outreach, we are always looking for new ways to put Oxford on the radar of bright students in schools that might need extra support and encouragement. A day out at Twickenham is a wonderful opportunity to hopefully reach even more students and teachers who might consider applying to Oxford."

Megan Goldman Roberts Access Officer at St John's College Cambridge, said. "The University of Cambridge and the colleges meet thousands of students and teachers every year to provide advice and inspiration It's great to be speaking to so many students today about the exciting opportunities which our universities offer"

Many Brits consider turning their hobby into a business

Wix.com a leading cloud-based web development platform, conducted a piece of research, which revealed that 44.1% would prefer to be their own bosses and turn their hobby into a business

In fact, 32% of Brits think that they are better at their hobby than at their current job and over a quarter believe that they could make up to £40 000 pounds a year if they were to turn their hobby into a business

During 2017, we are most likely to see Brits turning hobbies such as baking, photography and sports into online businesses, particularly individuals with the highest levels of education, graduates and post-graduates and high earners

David Schwartz VP of e-commerce at Wix.com said: "This data is in line with what we observe on our platform.

"Quite often users come to us without knowing where to start but they quickly realise how easy and affordable it is to create manage and grow their business online

"The UK e-commerce market is the strongest in Europe and the second largest in the world, and our most popular vertical, which clearly reveals the British entrepreneurial spirit

"What stands out from this data is the lack of confidence most British people have on the digital skills needed to set up an online business (20%)

"We are confident we can be part of the solution by offering everyone a set of tools that enable them to easily create a professional online presence."

Oxford Uni students are top 10 under 30 to look out for this year

A SELECTION of experts from Capital Enterprise RBS and Google Cloud Platform have chosen their top ten young entrepreneurs to watch out for this year Two of those graduated from Oxford.

Tommy Williams, founder of All Shades Covered, an e-commerce site providing affordable hair care products and extensions to women of colour They achieve this by cutting out the middle man involved in most salon s supply chains and dealing with extension factories directly Williams grew up in East London and graduated from Oxford University in 2012.

He worked as an investment banker for Goldman Sachs and Jumia in Nigeria before his sister's comments on how much she had to spend on haircare led to him launching All Shades Covered in April 2016

Jamie Potter, co-founder of Flexciton an AI company that improves the efficiency of rotation equipment by using machine learning to check the data generated by large machines and figure out a more energy efficient way to use this data. Huge equipment like this can consume over 25% of the world's energy and Flexciton's applications can save companies up to £30m in this area. Jamie studied for a masters in maths at Oxford University and began work on a number of initiatives before meeting his co-founder Dr Dionysios Xenos when they were both selected to joining Entrepreneur First.

John Spindler, CEO of Capital Enterprise said. "We were looking for young entrepreneurs who had a great product in a interesting market and who we felt were passionate about succeeding

"We chose the best entrepreneurs on merit and it was very satisfying to see the range of backgrounds and sectors our selections come from. Within the ten we have 3 women, four non Brits (one from China and three from Europe) and a mix of AI, E-Commerce and Social Enterprise.

"I'm looking forward to seeing in 12 months what these companies have achieved – I can confidently predict that some of them will change the world."

Companies will work on 'integrated drug discovery' targetting unmet medical needs

Chronos Therapeutics joins forces with Aptuit to target programmes for addictive behaviour

By Alan Iszatt

Chronos Therapeutics Ltd (Chronos) the private biotech company focused on ageing diseases, brain and nervous system disorders have partnered with a subsidiary of Aptuit Holdings LLC (Aptuit) for services related to Chronos programme targeting the addictive behaviours of binge eating and alcohol use disorders.

The companies will work together on integrated drug discovery (medicinal and computational chemistry, biology and DMPK) to optimise Chronos selective orexin 1 antagonists that have shown considerable promise in treating addiction.

Chronos will lead the programme and have access to world leading experts at the Aptuit site in Verona, Italy. All intellectual property, know how, development and marketing rights for the programme will belong to Chronos.

Each of the addictive behaviours targeted represents an area of significant unmet medical need, complementing Chronos additional programmes for the fatal neurodegenerative disease Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS) and fatigue associated with multiple sclerosis (MS).

> "We are very pleased to partner with Aptuit for our selective orexin 1 programme"
> Dr Huw Jones, CEO of Chronos Therapeutics

Dr Huw Jones, CEO of Chronos Therapeutics said: "We are very pleased to partner with Aptuit for our selective orexin 1 programme. The strong expertise that Aptuit Verona has in this area significantly increases our chances of success in developing a truly novel agent for the treatment of addictive behaviours. It further supports Chronos' commitment to developing specific and effective treatments for behavioural brain diseases that have a profound impact on patients' quality of life."

Dr Jonathan Goldman, CEO of Aptuit Holdings LLC said: "We are delighted to partner with Chronos to develop these treatments for patients. Chronos' commitment and in-depth knowledge in this area combines perfectly with our decades of internal expertise in orexin chemistry and biology."

QualitySolicitors help Barnardo's mark their 150th anniversary

By Alan Iszatt

Henley based QualitySolicitors (QS) has been fundraising to raise money for their charity partner of six years, Barnardo's.

2016 was an especially important year for Barnardo's as they commemorated their 150th anniversary whilst also launching their new ten year brand strategy in September 2016.

QualitySolicitors firms across the country have devised a number of creative ways to raise money and awareness of the critical work Barnardo's do. For example, Frank Lissimore, a Managing Partner at QS Amphlett Lassimore in South East London undertook a week's long motorcycle road trip across the length and breadth of England, whilst employees at QS Barwells in Seaford challenged themselves to collectively ride 120 miles on exercise bikes.

Balkar Bains from QS Lawrence Hamblin in South Bucks, Reading and Henley climbed Mount Kilimanjaro in July whilst Sam Watton from Doncaster-based QS Jordans took on Britain's biggest mountain, Ben Nevis in Scotland.

In addition to individuals at QS firms taking no remarkable feats, QualitySolicitors also carried out a number of network-wide initiatives. The most successful of these was Will Month 2016 where QS firms across the country offered their time for free throughout October to those looking to educate themselves on the process of creating a Will.

Dedicating this time for free not only raised consumer awareness of a hugely important issue, it also secured scores of legacy donations from those who took advantage of the free service and were kind enough to leave a gift to the QualitySolicitors' official charity partner.

Sallie Winterbottom, Marketing Executive for Barnardo's, said: "We are so grateful to all the QualitySolicitors firms and employees that have contributed to this incredible amount of donations raised by the group.

"The number of QS employees who have undertook challenges as part of our Bucket List Challenge is amazing and we look forward to working with the network in 2017 and beyond."

Nick Howitt, Network Development Director at QualitySolicitors, comments: "QualitySolicitors firms across the country really have raised the bar 2016 is a really big year in the history of Barnardo's and we couldn't be prouder of the firms that have risen to the challenge and raised vital funds for the charity. We look forward to working closely with Barnardo's in 2017 to help them deliver the invaluable services they provide to some of the country's most disadvantaged children."

Even when 2016 was coming to an end, QS firms showed no sign of slowing down. QS Amphlett Lassimore donated gift card vouchers to those who use Barnardo's that are 16 years or older, whilst QS HPJV staff were busy making Christmas Eve boxes for young children in Newport, buying and wrapping pyjamas and also presenting them with £5 gift cards.

The successes of 2016 will continue throughout this year with the launch of Barnardo's initiative 'New Year New You'. This will see QS firms and employees take on even more challenges for the children's charity in 2017.

CBE for Business School Professor Colin Mayer in New Year's Honours

Colin Mayer, Peter Moores Professor of Management Studies at Said Business School, University of Oxford, has been appointed Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE) in the New Year's Honours list 2017 for services to business education and the administration of justice in the economic sphere.

"It is a huge honour to receive this recognition," said Professor Mayer. "We are a young school and I'm tremendously proud of how far we have come and the achievements we have made in the 21 years since the school delivered its first MBA programme."

Professor Mayer the first professor at Oxford Said and former Dean of the School, is an expert on all aspects of corporate finance, governance and taxation, the regulation of financial institutions, and the role of the corporation in contemporary society. His outspoken book Firm Commitment: Why the Corporation is Failing Us and How to Restore Trust in It revealed the level of erosion and trust in our economic and financial institutions and placed the corporation at the centre of this failure. He argues that the corporation is no longer serving the interests of society at large and he calls on policy-makers and senior business figures to implement reform. Professor Mayer is a Fellow of the British Academy. His honours also recognize his work on the Competition Appeal Tribunal.

His most recent research is a collaborative project with the Mars Corporation exploring mutuality as a business model and the principle of fair distribution of the burdens and benefits of a firm's activities. The concept looks to expand managerial focus beyond simple profit to take into account the full cost and potential benefit for business, society and the planet in addressing the new forms of scarcity – human, social and environmental.

Colin Mayer

"This current research programme as well as many others that are being undertaken at the school, will be fundamental in developing innovative programmes that seek to embed responsible, inclusive capitalism in business school education, and it will be instrumental in educating a new generation of business leaders," concluded Professor Mayer.

"We are proud of the pathbreaking work that Colin has been leading and delighted that his achievements have been acknowledged. Now more than ever, we need to rigorously advance new models of business and Colin's work is stimulating scholars and practitioners to think more deeply about the role of the corporation," said Peter Tufano, Peter Moores Dean of Oxford Said.

Businesses 'struggle to deal with the impact of bereavement'

Businesses are not prepared to deal with the impact of staff bereavement and terminal illnesses in the work place, new research from MetLife Employee Benefits shows

The MetLife study found nearly half (45%) of HR departments do not have agreed policies in place to cope with the aftermath of the death of an employee and two-thirds (64%) do not have agreed procedures for supporting staff who are diagnosed with a terminal illness

The need to address the issue of bereavement in the workplace is underlined by the research – around 13% of HR departments have had to endure the sad misfortune of managing in the workplace following the death of an employee in the past two years.

In addition, nearly one in three (31%) have had to provide bereavement support to a member of staff during the past two years after they suffered a death in the family

Employees are entitled to be permitted by their employer to take a reasonable amount of time off during the employee's working hours in order to take any action which is necessary in consequence of the death of a dependant (spouse, child or parent and includes someone who relies on the employee for the provision of care) Often bereavements can be sudden and this can cause stress and worry for both the individual bereaved, but also in the workplace and for their colleagues around them MetLife has launched a toolkit including guides videos and advice on managing the impact bereavement can have in the workplace to help support HR departments and brokers The toolkit also includes practical hints and considerations to help employers respond in a timely manner when faced with this unenviable situation as that the employee receives immediate and ongoing support for as long as they need it – and at a time when they need it most.

MetLife research shows HR departments are generally sympathetic to supporting bereaved members of staff, with 92% saying they offer flexible working to staff while 24% provide access to bereavement helplines through their employee benefits provider and 13% offer face-to-face counselling.

However there is an acceptance that more needs to be done two out of five HR departments say they are considering providing training for line managers to help them support staff while a third say they will consider introducing specialist support services.

Tom Gaynor Employee Benefits Director at MetLife UK said: "Bereavement is sadly something which will affect most employees and companies need to have agreed procedures in place to ensure staff and their families have support when they need it.

"Companies clearly want to be supportive and sympathetic but it is surprising that so many do not have clear policies and procedures in place for bereavement."

Average rents in Oxford set to rise

BACK in the spring of 2016 there was a surge in Oxford landlords buying buy to let property as they tried to beat George Osborne's new stamp duty changes, which kicked in on April 1.

During 2016 Oxford rents rose steadily and this is not likely to reverse any time soon particularly as Government legislation planned for 2017 might reduce rental stock and push property values ever upward.

The decline of buy to let mortgage interest tax relief will make some buy to let properties loss-making, forcing landlords to pass on costs to tenants in the form of higher rents just to stay afloat.

Even those who can still operate may be deterred from making further investments reducing growth in rental stock at a time of severe shortage in Oxford.

But it's not all bad news for tenants. Whilst average rents in Oxford since 2005 have increased by 22.6 per cent inflation has been 38.5 per cent over the same time frame, meaning Oxford tenants are 15.9 per cent better off in real terms when it comes to their rent.

The view I am trying to portray is that while renting is often portrayed as the unfavourable alternative to home ownership, many young Oxford professionals like renting as it gives them adaptability with their life.

But tenants have also had a good deal with below inflation increases in rents debunking the myth that landlords have profited from hiking rents above either inflation or the increases in costs of house ownership.

In reality, landlords have been prudent and cautious recognising that their tenants have been living through an economic downturn.

Five top tips to help you move with less stress

THE moving process can be stressful, as everyone knows but there are some simple steps you can take to make your move go with less stress.

Kevin Shaw national sales director at Leaders said: "It's rare for any move to be completely free of stress but there are certainly ways to make the process easier.

"By following our tips below you can make sure things go as smoothly as possible and avoid some common problems."

Organise your finances

Organising your finances as early as possible will put you in the best position to make your first step. It's important to understand all the costs involved and work out exactly how much you can afford before you start your property search.

If you need a mortgage, as most people do, getting yourself pre-approved – which means being qualified by a mortgage lender prior to starting the search for your new home – will help you get your move off to the best possible start.

Not only does this enable you to find out for certain exactly how much you will be able to borrow so you can focus your property search accordingly, it also puts you in a stronger position once you've found a property you want to make an offer on. In today's competitive market this will help you secure the home you want.

Researching and applying for a mortgage can be exhausting on your own so our advice is to use a mortgage adviser who can help take the pain out of the process.

Sell your property before trying to buy your next home

In most circumstances it is best to put your property on the market before you start looking for your next home.

Not only will this help you organise your finances, but it means you'll be taken more seriously by both estate agents and sellers.

Plus getting interest in your property and possibly even offers, before you start searching for your next home will put you in a great position to make a serious offer.

Get a survey and a conveyancing specialist

In order to protect your future outgoings and avoid any unnecessary delays, costs and frustrations, it is vital you get a survey of the property you are buying. Make sure the surveyors you choose are professional and qualified.

You will also need a conveyancing specialist to organise the legal process of transferring your property from one person to another.

Respond promptly to enquiries during the sales process

The quicker the process of selling and buying a home, the less stress fill the experience tends to be.

Moving house doesn't need to be stressful, says Leaders

Depending how many other parties are involved, this can take some time but you can help by being quick to respond to any queries and provide necessary documentation.

Your estate agent should also be proactive and keep you fully informed throughout the process so that any potential problems or delays can be swiftly dealt with.

Choose an estate agent who will help you every step of the way

Choose an experienced local firm that knows the area well and is passionate about helping you achieve your aims. Check out their reputation, their marketing techniques and their professionalism by meeting them face-to-face, asking lots of questions and seeking recommendations from other clients.

Ultimately you need to make sure you choose an agent you can trust to look after your best interests.

HOUSING developer Aster Group is making home-ownership one step closer to reality for hundreds of professionals currently priced out of the market with the launch of a phase of new shared ownership homes at Didcot's Great Western Park.

Some 140 one-, two- and three-bedroom homes will be available during 2017 and into 2018 via Aster at Great Western – the 3,300 property development to the west of Didcot town centre – of which 96 are available through shared ownership.

Shared ownership allows buyers to buy a share in their own home and pay rent on the share that they don't own. This means that prospective home-buyers can take that all important first step to joining the property ladder using a smaller deposit and mortgage.

It provides long-term security of tenure and offers buyers the opportunity to build equity in their home up to outright ownership.

At Great Western Park, a 40 per cent share of a £255,000 Aster house – worth £102,000 – can be bought with a deposit of just over £5,000.

Great Western Park is one of the largest developments of its kind in the UK. When it is completed – expected to be 2022 – alongside homes it will also have three schools, a college, a nursery, parks, community centres and retail space.

Martyn Blackman, development director at Aster Group, said: "Shared ownership is a great alternative to renting or full ownership so it might be suitable for you if you can't afford to buy your own home outright.

"It's not just first time buyers or young people who can benefit – the average age of a shared ownership buyer is 35.

"There are no restrictions on the size of home you can buy or when you choose to sell up and move on."

Period home in Longworth

AN ATTRACTIVE and contemporary detached period home situated within the village of Longworth has gone on the market.

The small village of Longworth is a couple of miles south of the River Thames on a ridge known as the Golden Ridge.

Within the village there is a primary school and pre-school and The Blue Boar public house. Nearby Southmoor also has a tennis club.

Located to the front of the property is the drawing room which was formerly the main room of the village shop. The kitchen has been sympathetically designed to be in keeping with the age of the property and has been finished in a contemporary style and incorporates such modern comforts as a heated floor and integrated appliances.

The first floor of the house boasts an exceptional master suite due to its fitted wardrobes, feature bay window and modern en-suite with a bath, separate shower and heated floor.

The en-suite has a "Jack and Jill" arrangement of doors linking the master bedroom to the dressing room which could also be used as an additional bedroom.

More people, more congestion, more costs

New analysis released by Population Matters estimates England will face total annual costs of £23 8 billion by 2030 as a result of congestion caused by a surging human population.

This would mark a 58 7 per cent increase over 2015, costing the econ omy an extra £8.8 billion annually The population of England is projected to grow by 10% in the same period, reaching 60 million by 2030.

Alistair Currie, Head of Campaigns at Population Matters said: "This research makes the economic ramifications of population pressure resoundingly clear yet again. This isn t just about the impact on our pockets however Every commuter and holidaymaker knows the strain our transport system is already under–and the last thing our environment needs is more trains cars, buses and trucks pumping out more pollution.

"The effects of population growth can t be ignored. Politicians must face the facts and put fair effective policies in place to manage population growth and minimise the negative effects of our swelling numbers–if we are to achieve a sustainable–fair future for the UK and its people.

The research also calculates that by 2030

- The cost of traffic congestion per household could increase by 40 per cent, translating to a total of £2,100 per year
- Average lateness as a result of rail traffic could increase nationally by 48 2 per cent, and 96 14 per cent in London

Motorists in the south east of England choosing traditional payment methods over apps and new technologies

Half of commuters in the south east of England still prefer to use traditional cash and pay and display machines when paying for parking according to research commissioned by the British parking association (bpa)

Three in 10 motorists are happy to use their credit / debit card at the pay and display machine but are less comfortable with newer tech methods, with just 17% saying they would prefer to use a mobile phone app, paying via text, online or via a parking website.

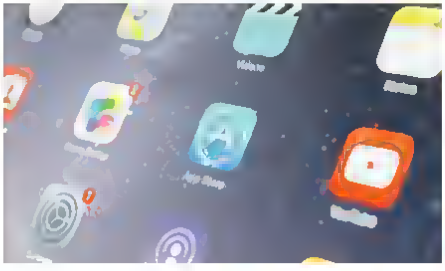
The reasons motorists prefer using traditional methods to pay for their parking over the newer ways to pay for parking include a distrust of newer technologies Added to this over one in five say they find the apps or websites confusing. A further one in 10 worry it will cost them more than necessary if they used a less traditional method.

Half of motorists say that finding somewhere to park is a stressful experience with 24% saying it is stress free. Yet, just 16% of motorists have used a parking app to help them find a place to park and 16% said they are not aware that these apps and websites even exist.

Patrick Troy, Chief Executive of the BPA, comments: "Our previous research shows that the majority of our members feel emerging technology will change or influence their organisation and the parking profession, with nearly three quarters involved in developing or encouraging future technology in areas such as intelligent mobility

"Whilst this new research shows that most motorists still prefer to use cash when paying for parking, the BPA's aim is to build public confidence in using newer payment technologies which can make finding places to park and paying for parking so much easier and more convenient and without the fear of something going wrong

"The BPA will bring together consumers and our members to ensure these innovations are used in a socially responsible manner and that the public values them New technology can make life so much easier for motorists getting them to their destinations quicker thus reducing congestion on our roads "



Watch out on the roads

Following the announcement of weather warnings from the Met Office for snow and strong winds, RAC spokesman Rod Dennis said:

"The see-saw weather we've seen in the last few weeks continues with a switch this week to much colder and much more unsettled conditions for all of us

"Even a small amount of snowfall has the potential to cause major disruption for motorists The fact that drivers in some parts of the country will be faced with strong winds, snow showers and icy stretches increases the chances of problems on the road enormously

"Commuters and those drivers planning longer journeys this week must heed the weather warnings and be prepared for tricky driving conditions and significantly extended journey times

"With the possibility of problems affecting public transport networks th s will likely force more people into their cars so motorists should also not rule out more traffic on major routes

"A lot of accidents happen when people are in a rush – with conditions deteriorating this week, we strongly advise motorists to plan their trips carefully and consider rearranging any non-essential journeys in the parts of the country most likely to be affected by the bad weather

"Drivers should take the time to check their car now to make sure it's in the best condition possible for the arrival of snow and ice. We recommend tyres are checked for tread and pressure, wipers for any wear and screenwash that protects to well below freezing is topped up.

"When out on snowy roads, always have dipped headl ghts on and proceed carefully and cautiously – drive with a very light right foot, and keep your revs down by changing to as high a gear as possible Try to avoid braking and turning at the same time – when approaching a bend in the road, reduce your speed first and then begin to turn. Above all avoid the temptation to brake sharply as that will make you lose control "

THE LAW HAS CHANGED ... DO YOU HAVE THE CORRECT GAS?

We can now offer R1234YF car air-con recharge and service

Wheatley CAR CENTRE

Is your car 2013 or newer? If so, you will need the correct gas.

As of the 7th September 2016 we are able to offer R1234yf refrigerant re-gassing, or a car air-con recharge as sometimes known at our Wheatley Car Centre Branch

This gas is compulsory for new cars from 2013 all be it has been around since 2010, although some manufacturers are still refusing to use this, notably Mercedes who are not happy with the flammable nature of the gas, which in turn means not many companies offer the re-gassing service for cars using r1234yf. But due to the amount of cars we sell we have needed to be able have this service onsite so we can now offer this service to our customers.

So, far ALL your re-gas and service needs please contact our Wheatley Car Centre Service Department, tel. 01865 874046 opt 2 • www.wheatleycarcentre.co.uk

SPORT

Stars' win followed by big defeat

OXFORD City Stars won their first game since November before being hammered in what was a mixed weekend for Simon Anderson's men.

The Stars last tasted victory on November 19 when they beat Milton Keynes Thunder 3 1.

Oxford then went on a dismal run of six consecutive defeats and a draw before winning their first match of the year 7-0 at Streatham on Saturday

But you would not have thought the Stars were on a miserable run against the London side when six different Oxford scorers the differ ence in an impressive City display

Darren Elliot (23 mins) Ben Paynter (30) Dominic Hopkins (33), Jae Edwards (33) and Hallam Wilson (40) all found the back of the net for Oxford in a 17 minute period

Edwards grabbed his second of the evening two minutes into the third period to complete the riot.

But the joy of victory was short lived as a day later Solent Devils ter rorised the Stars in a 10-4 defeat at the Oxford Ice Rink.

Alex Murray, Mark Pitts and Richard Facey fired the Devils in to a 3 1 lead by the end of the first period.

Andrew Campbell, Murray and Facey added three more for the visitors in the second period – the Stars could only respond with a Wil son strike to make it 5-2 heading into the last period.

Brendan Baird did claw two goals back for Anderson's side but they were overpowered by further goals from Murray, Mason Wild and an Aidan Doughty brace

The weekend win and defeat leaves the Stars mid-table in the NIHL South 1 after 18 matches.

They have a week off before a run of three home games sees City welcome Invicta Dynamos Bracknell Hornets and Milton Keynes Thunder between January 29 and February 11.

Heartbreak for Kidlington as they concede late goal

KIDLINGTON missed a penalty and conceded a last minute winner against Potters Bar to lose 2-1 in a game they dominated for vast periods on Saturday

After falling behind early in the second half the Greens restored parity on 67 minutes through top scorer Anaclet Odhiambo and were on top for much of the second half.

But Potters Bar substitute Michael Murray blasted home a winner for the visitors in the 88th minute.

After a drab first half in which the only highlights were Lewis Cayle free kicks Garry Jones fired the Scholars into a 51st minute lead.

Kidlington fought back well after falling behind and were rewarded when Odhiambo tied the scores with his 19th goal of the season in the 67th minute.

Encouraged by their equaliser, the Greens had the game by the scruff of the neck as they pushed for a winner

Odhiambo had the chance to put Kidlington in the lead 20 minutes from time when he was felled in the box.

After much discussion with his colleagues Odhiambo who has scored two penalties this season stepped up to take the penalty himself, but he scuffed his shot wide and the scores remained tied

The defeat was a disappointing set back for Kidlington, who beat league-leaders Royston 2-1 on Wednesday last week.

Kiddy travel to fellow strugglers Arlesey Town, who are winless in seven matches, on Saturday

Greene signs on for third season

SECOND rower and England stu dents international Charlie Greene has committed himself to Oxford RL for the 2017 season.

By pledging another year to the Iffley Road side 2017 will be Greene's third season with the Blues

The St Mary s student was a regu lar for the Blues last season and said. "I m delighted to stay at Oxford and work with Tim, Chris and Gary (the management team)

' They and the club were very sup portive with my England students' commitments last year I have a great respect for the coaches and I enjoy being at the club "

Blues assistant coach, Chris Bax ter said he is pleased with Greene's development.

He said. "This is good to have Char lie no board again he progressed well as a player last season.

"He s an enthusiastic player and we are delighted he's chosen to con tinue his development with us Char lie brings a lot of energy and a can do attitude into our team."

Tim Rumford added: "Charlie returned from his international duties in good form and performed well for us in the Shield games

"He's got character and a desire to improve and he s a very positive asset to the group "

Late drama as Wimborne equaliser and penalty miss deny Didcot victory

DIDCOT Town picked up their third successive draw at their match on Saturday although not without a bit of drama in the dying moments of the game

It ended 1-1, with Wimborne equalising in the 90th minute and Didcot having a penalty saved deep into injury time.

The Railwaymen have drawn four out of their last five matches but have at least remained unbeaten during that time after winning the other

It was the visitors who scored first after 18 minutes when a through ball found its way to Sam Barder who calmly slotted home past Wimborne keeper Gerrard Benfield.

There were few chances for most of the match with Didcot being able to hang on to their narrow lead

But in the 90th minute Wim borne pulled level when Didcot keeper Leigh Bedwell came out of his goal to collect the ball only to have it tapped past him by Rob inson Okumu

There was still more drama to come though as Wimborne captain Billy Maybury was sent off for a deliberate handball to prevent Didcot s second, with the Railwaymen duly being awarded a penalty

Yet after scoring all of his spot kicks so far this season Ben Whitehead's effort on Saturday was calmly saved meaning both sides had to be content with a point

Didcot are 13th in the Divi sion 1 South and West table with 36 points and host Shortwood United on Saturday, who are one place and one point above them in the table

They then host fifth-placed Taunton Town in their match on Tuesday evening

New captain at Oxfordshire Cricket Club

OXFORDSHIRE Cricket Club has appointed its new captain and vice-captain ahead of the 2017 season.

Jonny Cater has been selected as captain of the senior men's first team for the upcoming campaign, with Lloyd Sabin appointed as vice captain.

Cater takes up his new position after former captain Luke Ryan stood down in November last year

The club said 27-year-old Cater "was the clear choice to take on the role", having been vice captain for past three years

The wicket-keeper batsman has made 50 county appearances since his debut in 2011.

'Cat who said he was "honoured" to be offered the role, has scored 2,619 runs including 17 half centuries and five reaturies during this period and has taken 90 catches and made 17 stumpings

Sabin will deputise as his vice-captain and the 22-year old has played 55 times for Oxfordshire in either the Unicorns Championship or Trophy scoring 2 135 runs including 12 half centuries and three hundreds in the process.

Oxfordshire Cricket Chairman Chris Clements said. "I am delighted that Jonny has accepted the role as Oxfordshire's captain in all forms of the game

"He has an incredible hunger for the role and has always impressed when standing in as captain in recent years."

Banbury settle for a point

BANBURY United missed out on the chance to move into the Southern Premier League play-off places as they were pegged back to a draw against Weymouth.

Tuesday s match finished 2-2, although it did extend the Puritans' unbeaten run in the league to eight games

Banbury took the lead early into the fixture as Zar McEachran found Conor McDonagh on the edge of the Weymouth penalty area, who then powered his shot into the bottom corner

In the 37th minute Banbury made it 2-0 as McDonagh s saved effort landed at the feet of Jack Self, who finished the job from 15 yards

Right before the break Banbury conceded their first goal in seven league games with Stuart Fleetwood scoring into the far corner

For much of the second half Wey mouth pushed for the equaliser how ever the Banbury defence held firm

That was until the 83rd minute when Aaron Rodriguez finally got Weymouth back on level terms with a shot from close range

Both sides tried to grab a late win ner in the final stages of the match, but had to settle for a point apiece

It comes after Banbury had beaten Kings Langley 1-0 at home on Satur day – McDonagh's goal in the second half enough to earn the Puritans the three points.

Banbury are now sixth in the table on 51 points, one behind Slough Town in the final play off spot but with Frome Town and Chesham United close behind

They next host St Neots Town on Saturday before another home game against Chesham next Tuesday

City throw away lead... three times

George Welch: Reporter

OXFORD City caretaker boss Mark Jones said he was left "feeling disappointed" after the Hoops threw away a winning position three times in a 3 3 draw at Concord Rangers on Saturday

Mike Fondop Matt Peake Pijnen and Stephane Nganmoulou put City ahead of their Canvey Island hosts on three occasions but were pegged back each time they got their noses in front

Speaking after the game Jones reflected on a disappointing outcome with a sprinkling of positives.

He said, "Overall I m feeling disappointed that we've been up three times in the game but we couldn t quite see it out to get three points

"There were two penalties given against us which I felt were a little bit soft. I can perhaps understand the ref giving one but we felt a little bit hard done by

"It was positive to score three good goals away from home. Matt Peake-Pijnen, only 18, scoring his first and Mike Fondop back in the goals again.

"We just felt a little disappointed that we couldn't get the three points after leading three times."

Jones, who has overseen three wins, a draw and a defeat, said he is concerned by his teams inability to keep the opposition shut out.

He said, "You could say its pleasing to get a point away from home but we've scored five goals in the last two games and only come out with one point which is concerning.

"We need to get our defensive shape right, we need to stop the goals going in against us to be able to start winning games."

Concord were winless in five but posed a constant threat to City's leaky backline

"I've seen them play a few times this season and I think they are better than a bottom three side and I don't expect them to be there at the end of the season

"Their front two showed a lot of good movement and caused us problems."

The Hoops, who are unbeaten in the two home games under Jones host Bath City on Saturday

It will be the fourth meeting between the sides this season, with City winning, losing and drawing the three fixtures.

Abrupt end for Ardley's winning run

ARDLEY United s six-game winning run in the Hellenic Premier League was brought to an abrupt end as they were thrashed 4-0 at home to High worth Town on Saturday

Going into the second half Ardley fans would have feared conceding even more, but to the home side's credit they managed to shut High worth out for the rest of the match

They did come close to scoring on a couple of occasions, in particular when Nathaniel Lewars saw his shot rebound down off the crossbar and away to safety but to no avail.

Ardley manager Paul Davis said, "I'm really disappointed to lose the game obviously we've been really good recently but I felt the first 20 minutes we were slightly overawed by our opposition.

"We didn't concede a goal with 10 men on the pitch for an hour and managed to create some chances in that time, so we ll take these positives into next week."

The result keeps Ardley sixth in the standings with 43 points, and they next travel to Longlevens on Saturday afternoon.

Fixture pile-up

NORTH Leigh will have to endure a heavily congested fixture pile-up after having two games postponed this week.

Saturday s Southern League Division 1 South & West fixture at home to Yate Town was postponed due to a frozen pitch and Tuesday s clash at Bishops Cleeve was cancelled because of a waterlogged pitch.

Following impressive runs in the FA Cup and the FA Trophy, Leigh already have a busy schedule and are due to play midweek games for the next three weeks.

The rescheduled fixtures will be announced by the club in due course.

The Millers, who have five games in hand on some teams travel to second placed Evesham United – should the weather be kinder – on Saturday

WANTAGE Town remain in serious danger of being cut-off at the bottom of Division 1 South & West as they extended their winless run to 10 games

The Freds latest defeat came at home – where they remain winless all season – to play-off chasing Salisbury on Saturday

He added, "We deserved a point and I have complete faith in this squad.

"Still absolutely gutted about (the) result. We ran Salisbury close and a point would have been fantastic."

He said, "It wasn't so much of a tough game as a tough pitch and we missed a lot of chances.

"When most had given up we nicked it, but we do make life difficult for ourselves.

"I thought it was going to be one of those days with Justin Bennett hitting the post but in the second half we kept doing the right things

"Unless you had been out there and trodden on that pitch, you couldn't understand how bad it was."

Wantage Towe have announced the resignation of Glyn Evans and Chris Halliday manager and assistant manager for the development team, with immediate effect An interim manager will be promoted from within the club.

F1 round-up

Principal out

RENAULT team principal Fred Vasseur has left the Enstone-based team, it was announced last week.

Vasseur joined Renault ahead of the 2016 season, and oversaw their first campaign since buying out Lotus at the end of the previous year.

No replacement has been announced with the team continuing to be managed by Renault president Jerome Stoll and managing director Cyril Abiteboul.

A statement from Renault said: "Both parties remain committed to maintaining the good working relationship they have enjoyed and expect thus to take a new form sometime in the future."

E for Esteban

FORMER Haas driver Esteban Gutierrez is to drive in Formula E starting in his home country of Mexico on April 1.

The 25 year old was dropped from the Banbury based team at the end of 2016 following a disappointing year where he failed to score any points.

It is not yet known what team he will drive for in Formula E the electric single seater racing series that began in 2014.

Lowe leaves

PADDY Lowe has left his role as executive technical director of Mercedes ahead of an anticipated move to Grove-based Williams.

He has been placed on gardening leave, while Mercedes' technical organisation will continue under its current directors.

Lowe said: "I am now looking forward to a new challenge and wish everyone well at Mercedes."

Manor offer?

AN offer has been made to buy the Manor Formula One team, according to Autosport.

It is reporting that administrators FRP Advisory LLP are talking to a number of interested parties about buying the team, with one having made an offer.

Nothing has so far been confirmed by the administrators or the team.

Just Racing Services, the company that operates Manor, went into administration earlier this month, with a buyer needing to be found in the next couple of weeks.

Wehrlein moves

EX MANOR driver Pascal Wehrlein has been confirmed as the new driver at Sauber replacing Felipe Nasr.

Wehrlein scored Manor's only point in Austria last year, and had been touted as a possible replacement for Nico Rosberg at Mercedes before joining Sauber.

Wehrlein said: "It is a new challenge in a new team and I am really excited and looking forward to this new adventure."

Felipe Massa Q&A: His thoughts on F1 return

FELIPE Massa was finally confirmed as a Williams driver for 2017, just months after having announced his retirement from Formula One. Here's what he had to say about it.

Q: You said at the end of last season that you felt it was the right time to retire from Formula One. What has changed?

A: My intention was always to race somewhere, as I still have the passion for racing and competing. I also have a strong love for Williams as I have enjoyed the last three years with the team, and therefore coming back to help give stability and experience to drive things forward in 2017 was something that felt right to do.

Q: Could you have looked at other opportunities to stay in Formula One if you were still open to the idea?

A: I have a passion for racing, for competing and for fighting on the track. My return is not about seeing Formula One as the best option but is about seeing the role at Williams as the best option. I would not have returned for any other team.

Q: You left the sport on such a high at the end of last season, is there a danger that you won't get the same reception now you have returned?

A: The scenes I saw in Brazil and Abu Dhabi last year are ones that I will never forget. I am so grateful for everything that happened last year and all the kind messages. Whatever happens this season, I will always leave the sport with my head held high.

A: Going to the current world champions is a great opportunity for Valtteri. He is a talented racer and it was great working alongside him for three years. I wish him all the best for the next chapter of his career.

Q: What are your thoughts and hopes for 2017?

A: It's going to be an exciting year with all the regulation changes and I'm going to be spending lots of time with the team now preparing for the season. It's too soon to make predictions as we haven't even turned a wheel, but I can say that I'm very much looking forward to driving the FW40 when testing begins next month.

Q: Williams is celebrating 40 years in Formula One this year, are you looking forward to being part of that?

A: Yes, very much. Williams has such great history in the sport and reaching this milestone is a fantastic achievement. I know the team has more plans to celebrate this year and I'm looking forward to being part of them.

AFC Wimbledon do double over Oxford Utd

Rob Hall in action for United

ROB Hall's second goal of the season was not enough to prevent Oxford United's first ever defeat at AFC Wimbledon on Saturday

The winger scored just six minutes in but the U's let the early lead slip in London as Wimbledon strolled to a 2-1 win to complete the Dons' first ever home win and double over the Yellows.

United had beaten their hosts eight times and drawn with them twice in the 10 meetings between the sides before this season.

It was the 23-year-old's second league goal for United since returning to first team action in November

He joined the club last summer from Bolton Wanderers when recovering from a ruptured anterior cruciate ligament picked up in training in April last year

And having played more than 30 times for Wimbledon's bitter rivals MK Dons across two loan spells, the goal was more memorable for the former England youth international.

United were pegged back six minutes later when Deane Barrett fired from a similar distance as Hall.

The Dons netted what proved to be the winner on the half hour mark when an unmarked header from Sean Kelly ended United's six match unbeaten record on the road and propelled Wimbledon above Oxford in the SkyBet League 1 table.

Dons boss Neal Ardley admitted afterwards he was disappointed his side failed to score more goals and Eastwood made several key saves to keep Oxford in the match.

United had shown character to stay in the game but only truly found their rhythm in the last 15 minutes as the home side chased, harried and closed them down all over the pitch.

The U's are on the road again on Saturday when they travel to Rochdale.

OXFORD United are reportedly closing in on their first new signing of the January transfer window while two youngsters have left the club

A player that head coach Michael Appleton has tried to sign before from a higher division is expected to sign for the club on loan in the next couple of days.

The only transfer activity into the Kassam Stadium so far this window has been the extension of Chesterfield defender Charlie Raglan's loan deal, which will see the imposing centre half stay with Oxford until the end of the season.

But it has been confirmed that West Brom prodigy Tyler Roberts won't be returning for a second loan at Oxford United.

The forward, who turned 18 on Thursday last week, is being sent to United's SkyBet League One rivals Shrewsbury for the remainder of the campaign.

Roberts, who made his last appearance for United in a 1-0 win at Gillingham on January 2 scored twice in 22 appearances in an Oxford shirt.

The Wales youth international tweeted his goodbyes to the club on Monday: "Thank you to everybody at Oxford United for making my time there so enjoyable. All the best for the rest of the season."

Meanwhile, young U's midfielder Josh Ashby has extended his loan deal at Oxford City

The 20 year-old has made 15 appearances for City this season and will remain at Court Place Farm until the end of the season.

Appleton said: "Josh has done well there. It's obviously local so we can monitor his progress and keep an eye on him, and I'm sure he will want to play as many games as possible and impress in the second half of the season."

Tyler Roberts scored 2 goals in 22 Oxford appearances, most as a substitute

New director joins the U's

OXFORD United have announced the appointment of a new director – Oxford University professor and United fan Lionel Tarassenko

Prof Tarassenko a U's fan for over 30 years was appointed to the club's board on Friday. He is currently head of the Department of Engineering Science at Oxford University and sits on the University Council.

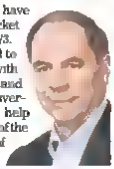
As well as being a pre-eminent research scientist the club said Prof Tarassenko also has extensive experience of running major projects, fundraising and developing national and international partnerships.

United chairman Darryl Eales said. "Lionel and I have developed a good relationship over the past 12 months and it is a privilege that he has agreed to join the board.

"Lionel will bring a wealth of local, national and international knowledge and experience to the Board as we seek to take the club forward both on and off the pitch."

Prof Tarassenko said. "I have been a fan since 1983-4 when I was doing my doctorate at the John Radcliffe Hospital and started going to the Manor Ground next to the hospital.

"I have watched the club in five divisions from the old First Division to the Conference, and have been a season ticket holder since 2002/3.



"I look forward to working closely with the Chairman and bringing my University expertise to help the development of the club in a number of areas."

Tickets on sale for FA Cup and Checkatrade

TICKETS have been selling well for Oxford United's Emirates FA Cup 4th round tie against either Birmingham City or Newcastle United.

As of 2pm on Monday 3,520 tickets had been sold for the game at the Kassam Stadium on Saturday, January 28, at 3pm

United found out their 4th round opponents last night as we went to press as Birmingham travelled to the north east for the replay following the 1-1 draw earlier this month

Tickets are also on sale for United's Checkatrade Trophy quarter-final tie against fellow League One side Bradford City

The game at the Kassam Stadium is on Tuesday with kick off at 7.45pm

The North Stand will be closed for home supporters as will the end blocks of the East Stand, the South Stand Lower and the South Stand Upper

The Yellows will also take on Kidlington in the quarter-final of the Oxfordshire Senior Cup next month.

United, the current holders, enter the competition at this stage each year and will travel to Yarnton Road on Wednesday February 8

Meanwhile the U's allocation of tickets for the SkyBet League One game at local rivals Swindon Town on Sunday, February 5 is sold out

Tickets were snapped up instantly by season ticket holders last week and didn't make it to general sale.

Adam Flinn, Reporter

FELIPE Massa will come out of retirement to race for Williams in 2017 on a one year deal, it was confirmed on Monday

The Brazilian rejoins the team he had left at the end of last season to replace Valtteri Bottas, who has moved to Mercedes to fill the gap left by the shock departure of world champion Nico Rosberg

The move had been rumoured for weeks but was finally made official on Monday with Massa teaming up alongside 18-year-old rookie Lance Stroll.

Massa said: "Firstly, I am very happy to have an opportunity to return to Williams

"I always intended to race somewhere in 2017 but Williams is a team close to my heart and I have respect for everything it is trying to achieve

"I certainly have not lost any enthusiasm for racing and I'm extremely motivated to be coming back – the support from my fans over the last few weeks has been a huge boost and I'm grateful for that.

"I also look forward to working with Lance. I've known him for many years and seen his talent develop during that time so I look forward to seeing what we can achieve together"

Massa announced his retirement during the Italian Grand Prix weekend in September when it became clear there wouldn't be a place for him with the team in 2017.

Deputy team principal Claire Williams said: "I'm delighted that Felipe has agreed to come out of retirement to be a part of our 2017 campaign.

"With Valtteri having a unique chance to join the current constructors champions we have been working hard to ensure that an agreement could be made with Mercedes to give him this fantastic opportunity

"Felipe has always been a much-loved member of the Williams family, and having the opportunity to work with him again is something we all look forward to."

The 2017 season begins in Australia on March 26
